Mississippi Nears 99-Year High; Crumbling Levees Bare Farms

STOCKHOLDERS CONGRATULATE AVERY—Sewell Avery, chairman of the board of Montgomery Ward & Company (right, center), is congratulated by stockholders after his re-election to the board of directors at the annual meeting of stockholders in the Blackstone hotel yesterday in Chicago. The meeting was moved from the Ward offices where the government has taken over by an order of President Roosevelt.

Another Invasion Fleet Forms in British Port, German Radio Reports

LONDON, Saturday, April 29.—(AP)—The Berlin radio early today announced that the German anti-invasion command was about to go into action and reported that "another huge Allied fleet is forming in the ports of southeast England."

As Nazi speculation on the date of the invasion reached a feverish pitch, the Germans said Nazi raiders struck again at "concentrated Allied shipping massed off southwest England." The German radio previously had claimed bomber attacks on Allied shipping Thursday night.

A vast outpouring of speculation came from Nazi and neutral microphones, some contradictory and some nonsense, with guessing on the date of D-day ranging from May 2 to June 7 and with general prediction that the Allied invasion from the west would be timed with colossal blows in the south and in the east.

One Captain Karl Henrik Falkman, a commentator unknown in London but described by the Swedish radio as a Swedish naval expert, broadcast one of the most detailed predictions on invasion yet aired from the continent, stating D-day would come between May 2 and May 17, and probably in broad daylight.

IDENTIFIES MAIN BLOW

This commentator forecast that the main attack would take place across the channel, either between the Seine and Cherbourg or between Calais and the Scheldt river, whose mouth is near Antwerp, Belgium.

"It may be estimated," he said, "that six or seven British battleships and two American battleships will be taking part in the operations. Parachute troops in numbers not hitherto believed possible will be dropped behind German defense lines and at strategical key points."

He said the exact date of the invasion depended upon the difference between high and low tide, and that "the smallest difference occurs about 48 hours after the quarter of the moon. The moon's first quarter will be April 30 and the last quarter on May 15."

DANISH PHONES CUT

Stockholm reported telephone communications between there and Copenhagen were completely suspended today, not even official calls being accepted in the German-held Danish city.

It was the second such interruption in communications this week, the Germans last Monday isolating Denmark from the rest of the world at the start of an intensive campaign to stamp out the Danish underground and halt sabotage.

First Danes to reach the Swedish port of Malmo after the first isolation were quoted yesterday by the newspaper Dagens Nyheter as saying 40,000 Danes were armed and ready to intervene if the

Guam Bombed; Japs Hold Fire; Ponape Blasted

By The Associated Press

Guam, former United States possession overrun by the Japanese in the Pacific, was bombed by the Navy and, despite the presence of Japanese planes on the ground, no attempt to offset the American attack was made.

Announcing the April 24 attack last night, the Navy also said that Ponape was attacked by Army and Navy planes on April 26, later the same day re-attacked by the Army and the following day again by the Army.

Japanese armies were halted or routed on every Pacific battlefront, Allied communiques reported yesterday.

OTHER JAP SETBACKS

Americans and Australians found little trace of fighting Nipponese as they consolidated gains along 450 miles of the New Guinea coast where they have captured six air fields and four enemy bases within the last week.

United States Pacific Fleet headquarters at Pearl Harbor announced yesterday that Admiral Raymond A. Spruance has been officially designated as the commander of the Fifth Fleet. This command designation for Spruance replaces his former title of commander of the Central Pacific Force.

Meanwhile Allied bombers have bombed Sorong on the western end of New Guinea for the second straight day, General MacArthur announced.

While only light skirmishing was reported for the Hollandia and Aitape areas of northern New Guinea, invaded just a week ago, heavy bombers also pounded airdromes and harbor facilities at Babo on the south shore of McCluer gulf at the western end of the huge island.

WEWAK BLASTED

Wewak, the enemy's biggest remaining base on eastern New Guinea, was hit by Fifth Air Force bombers which destroyed the remains of the Japanese air force there.

At the same time the Allied invasion of Dutch New Guinea, at Hollandia, has released a hundred foreign missionaries, including 40 nuns, General MacArthur announced as he declared the military operation itself completed and the enemy disorganized and demoralized.

Eighteen picked Japanese divisions overrunning the flat lands of China's Honan province were reported hurled back 10 miles in their drive toward Loyang. The city is 70 miles west of the rail junction of Chenghsien, which fell to the invaders last Saturday, the same day the United States Sixth Army made a three-pronged invasion of western New Guinea. Chungking said another enemy drive, down the Peiping-Hankow railway, had been slowed down 40 miles south of Chenghsien.

ALLIES ROUT JAPS

Tanks paced British troops driving west from the Allied base of Kohima in eastern India. Allied forces crashing over the jungled hills routed the invaders from several positions in this sector, flanking the Kohima-Dimapur road down which British reinforcements poured. Tokyo radio asserted its Imperial forces had launched a new general offensive against Kohima.

Lieutenant General Joseph W. Stilwell announced the customary advances by his force in north Burma. His Chinese forces have driven to within 10 miles of Kaming, enemy base in the Mogaung valley, while his Burmese troops intensified their attacks 45 miles north of Myitkyina, primary Japanese base in north Burma.

HOWARD ESTATE $251,000

LONDON, April 28.—(AP)—Leslie Howard, British film star missing since last June 1 when the transport plane on which he was traveling from Lisbon to England messaged that it was being attacked by German fighters and then lapsed into silence, left an estate of $251,000, it was disclosed today. The majority of the estate will be held in trust for his widow, son and daughter.

39-Foot Crest Feared At St. Louis; 24 Dead In 2 Flooded States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Mississippi river, swollen to a stage which may equal a 99-year record at some places for the second time in a year, spilled over crumbling levees today to flood new acres of Illinois and Missouri farm lands but with less disastrous results than in 1943.

Four main levees protecting Illinois banks of the river went out as the crest neared. Orders came from the Army engineers' office to evacuate farm families from other areas threatened with inundation.

The flood is expected to crest at St. Louis at 38.9 feet, the same reading as last May. At that stage it exerts damaging pressure on every levee all the way down the river to Cairo, Ill.

For farmers on the river side of the levees this is the third consecutive year flood waters have driven them from their land.

The floods have taken a toll of 24 lives in Illinois and Missouri. Six deaths in Missouri were on the Mississippi in the St. Louis area.

Latest figures from the midwestern Red Cross office at St. Louis disclosed the floods along the Mississippi, Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois and other rivers have affected a total of 5,700 families in Missouri and Illinois and 6,527 families in Kansas and Oklahoma.

Waters of the Mississippi have covered 520,000 acres of Missouri and Illinois wheat lands of a total of 1,015,000 acres inundated.

Colonel L. B. Feagin, district engineer, said the river's rise has been slower than last year, permitting orderly evacuation and causing less loss of farm machinery and livestock. Since corn has not yet been planted, the crop damage will not reach last year's $32,000,000, he predicted.

The three rivers already have torn open levees and inundated well over 500,000 acres in 58 counties of Missouri and Illinois. To the west, the Arkansas river in Oklahoma had its third highest flood stages, and in Wichita, Kans., flood damage to homes from the same river was estimated by the Red Cross at more than $1,000,000. County Engineer Petticord said damage to bridges near Wichita totaled $147,000 more.

Georgia Rivers Ebb With Clearing Skies

Clearing weather yesterday brought the levels of Georgia rivers down in most sections of the state, the U. S. Weather Bureau's Atlanta office reported.

Waters in the Columbus area, which was expected to be hit heaviest by the swollen river, are lowering rapidly, the bureau reported, with the Chattahoochee river reaching 34.6 yesterday morning.

The Flint river in Albany is rising, and is expected to reach the 26-foot crest today and recede. River banks are well protected in that area.

Other rivers which are expected to rise slightly are the Apalachicola, at Chattahoochee and Blountstown, Fla., reaching a crest of 23 feet by May 2, the Ocmulgee river at Abbeville, rising 3½ feet above flood level, the Altamaha near Everett City, rising two feet above the 10-foot flood stage by May 10, and the Oconee at Dublin expected at 20-foot level by May 1.

Streams in the Atlanta, Macon and West Point areas are falling rapidly. At Norcross, the Chattahoochee reached 7.8 feet yesterday, more than eight feet below flood stage.

The Weather Bureau reported there may be showers in Georgia Sunday.

Navy's Frank Knox, 70, Is Dead of Heart Attack

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—Frank Knox, secretary of history's greatest Navy and one of the two Republicans in President Roosevelt's war cabinet, died today of a heart attack. He was 70.

All over the world, wherever the fleet he helped to build is operating, flags went to half staff as James V. Forrestal, acting secretary, flashed the word of his death by radio. The senate and house recessed out of respect. Lawmakers and federal officials joined in expressions of regret at his loss.

In an official message to ships and shore stations Forrestal announced that the end came at 12.08 p. m. (Atlanta time). Knox had suffered a first light heart attack in New York Sunday and a second severe one at his home here Tuesday after a recurrence of what he had believed to be indigestion.

The final attack came early today and though friends and relatives had first hoped he would pull through, the Navy announced about noon that the had taken a turn for the worse. He was the first cabinet member to die since Claude A. Swanson's demise while secretary of the Navy in July, 1939.

DISTINGUISHED PUBLISHER

To the Navy Knox left a heritage of physical and moral courage and a philosophy of vigorous action which had caused him to take an active role in the three big wars of his lifetime and helped him to prominence in newspaper publishing, which was his business, and politics, which he loved.

He was one of the "Rough Riders" of the Spanish-American War. He entered the last war as a private and came out a major of artillery, later advancing to the rank of colonel in the reserves. He entered the newspaper business as a crusading reporter in Grand Rapids, Mich., and ended as a crusading publisher of the Chicago Daily News.

During the first term of President Roosevelt, he was being talked of as a presidential possibility himself. In 1936 Alf Landon, of Kansas, got the bid and Knox was chosen his running mate as vice presidential nominee.

"HEAVY LOSS," SAYS F.D.R.

President Roosevelt said tonight the death of Secretary of the Navy Knox is a "heavy loss . . . to me especially who had come to lean on him increasingly." His statement, issued by the White House, said:

"I announce to the nation at war the sudden passing of the secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox. It is a heavy loss to us and to me especially, who had come to lean on him increasingly.

"He has done much for his country; he has helped greatly in our defense and in making victory certain.

"Finally, I like to think of his bigness and his loyalty. Truly he put his country first. We shall greatly miss his ability and his friendship."

It was regarded as possible in Washington political circles tonight that the President might seek another Republican leader to fill the Navy position.

Acting Secretary Forrestal is a broker and banker who has declared his hobby is "obscurity."

A veteran of naval aviation during the first World War, he came to Washington as an administrative assistant to President Roosevelt.

Cook Warns Dealers To Display Liquor

Declaring retail liquor stores are refusing to display their merchandise on shelves in their package shops, and that some hotel liquor stores are doing most of their liquor in sales by the drink outside the package shop, State Revenue Commissioner J. Eugene Cook has stated that the state liquor control unit will police these violations if local officers do not clean them up immediately.

"My attention has been called to the universal practice of dealers failing and refusing to display their merchandise on the shelves in the package shops," Cook and Director C. A. Gillespie, of the Alcohol Control Unit, wrote all retail liquor dealers yesterday.

"According to reports of some of our agents, this condition also is prevalent among hotel dealers. The practice seems to be for the dealers to use most of their merchandise in sales of whisky by the drink outside of their package shops."

Cook said his department has been policing the licensed dealers, and has been depending more or less on local enforcement officers to halt sale of whisky by the drink by others. If local officers do not correct these conditions in the immediate future, however, Cook said the state liquor control unit will step in.

"This notice is given to all dealers in the hope that they will correct this untenable condition themselves, and thereby relieve the revenue department of the responsibility of additional enforcement program," Cook said.

RAF Off Again; 3-Ply U.S. Blow Mauls France

LONDON, Saturday, April 29.—(AP)—The first triple-header American bomber strike highlighted widespread attacks on German air fields and fortifications in France yesterday and brought to approximately 2,800 the number of Allied British-based sorties during the last eight days of the "level of aerial sky offensive."

The attacks, which cost the Americans four bombers and three fighters, followed up a 1,000-plane, 2,500-ton RAF night assault on the Nazi technical center of Friedrichshafen and other important targets.

RAF heavy bombers streaked across the channel in the direction of the French coast shortly after dark yesterday, apparently in continuation of the uninterrupted "attack at Europe."

Two-Pronged Probe of Ward Seizure Pends

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—A double-barreled congressional investigation of the Montgomery Ward case was in prospect tonight as angry critics of seizure of the firm's Chicago plants asked whether the government would now take over "hamburger stands" and whether Attorney General Biddle wants to be an "American Himmler."

Chairman McCarran, Democrat, Nevada, of the Senate Judiciary Committee announcing he already had dispatched an investigator to Chicago, declared his committee was determined to "get to the bottom of this case."

Across the capitol, a resolution for an inquiry was forced to the house floor by an angry coalition of Republicans and Democrats who squeezed it through a tumultuous session of the rules committee by one vote.

In Chicago, meantime, Board Chairman Sewell Avery, whose defiance of a War Labor Board order led President Roosevelt to direct seizure of the company's plant there, was re-elected and received a vote of "full confidence" from Montgomery Ward's shareholders.

A. R. E. Wyant, a shareholder, said the initials F. D. R. meant "first dictator of the republic."

The proceedings concluded with a speech by Avery.

The company also opened a fight in federal court, contending that the seizure was unconstitutional. Attorney General Biddle replied that the President had power to enforce the WLB's orders.

McCarran said he sent the investigator to Chicago under authority of a recent senate resolution calling for an investigation of executive orders issued by President Roosevelt. He did not disclose the investigator's name but said he left for Chicago last night, is an attorney, and "talked with me by long-distance telephone today."

Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, earlier introduced a proposal for a special inquiry, saying the seizure raised the question

General Cheng Reported Aboard Downed Bomber

By The Associated Press

The Berlin radio, broadcasting a Japanese dispatch, said today Japanese planes had shot down a four-engined bomber escorted by two fighters over Burma and declared there was "every indication" that it carried General Chen Cheng, Chinese vice minister of war.

The report added that General Chen was sent to India on March 30 by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to consult with Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, southeast Asia commander, and afterward had made a tour of the battlefronts. General Chen was the hero of the Chinese victory on the Yangtze front last year.

New Conference Head Refuses To Speak With Hartley Away

By M. L. ST. JOHN.

First indications of the way the new administration of the Georgia conference on Social Welfare will [illegible] State Welfare Director A. J. Hartley's presumed [illegible] came yesterday shortly after Governor Arnall received [illegible] of protest and one of [illegible] Hartley having been [illegible] formerly independent [illegible]

Miss Lillie Wilson, Hartley's [illegible] the State Welfare Department, whom he had elected president of the welfare conference, was asked as president to comment on the resignation of Miss Jewel Garvin as executive secretary of the conference.

"I have no statement to make," Miss Wilson said, and quickly added:

"Judge Hartley is out of the [illegible]"

When asked if she or Hartley would issue a statement later the president answered:

"Judge Hartley will speak for himself when he returns to the city. I am rather busy and can't discuss the matter with you."

MISS WILSON'S POSITION

Although Hartley has clung to his contention of having any influence in the welfare conference, observers point out that no employe of the State Welfare Department can make any public statement without his approval. Apparently, Miss Wilson is applying this ban to her new job as president of the welfare conference.

Hartley himself could not be reached for comment yesterday. However, other than a straight denial that he had anything to do with the election, the welfare director has issued no statements.

Miss Garvin said she was quitting as executive secretary of the welfare conference in protest over the state welfare director taking control of the academic organization.

ARNALL SILENT

Governor Arnall is taking no part in this extracurricular activity of his political appointee. He made no comment yesterday when he received letters from Miss Josephine Wilkins, of Atlanta, and from the Columbus public welfare board condemning Hartley, and from the chairman of the Floyd county welfare board praising Hartley.

The Governor accepted, with regrets, the resignation of Mrs. Annette Suarez, of Cuthbert, as a member of the state welfare board. She quit in protest over Hartley's "dictatorial" methods of controlling the state welfare department.

Miss Wilkins denounced Hartley's power politics in the welfare conference as "reminiscent of the late political turmoil in the field of education which ushered in a new administration." She told the Governor that many who applauded Arnall's leadership deplore seeing "this type of thing raise its head under your administration."

MISS WILKINS' OPINIONS

"Too long has the top office of the department of public welfare been used to pay off political debts," Miss Wilkins said. "This department which ministers to the least fortunate members of our society should of all departments of the state be free of partisan politics and should be headed by one qualified beyond question to fill the office."

Taking the other view was Chairman W. C. Rash, of the Floyd county welfare board. He said he attended the conference and did not feel at the time that there were any irregularities whatever. Rash added that the election appeared to him to be "above board." He said a majority voted for Miss Lucile Wilson and he did not feel any apology is in order for the election.

Rash praised Miss Wilson as an outstanding welfare worker and commended Hartley's record as state welfare director.

The other letter attacking Hartley came from the Columbus Council of Social Agencies.

3,000 Gallons of Milk Wasted in ODT Fight

Fulton Jurors Favor School System Merger

By DUPONT WRIGHT.

Amalgamation of the county and Atlanta public school systems and retirement of Chief George Mathieson, Assistant Chief J. C. Oliver and Captain A. T. Butler, of the county police, on the grounds that they are "too old and infirm to perform their duties properly," were recommended by the Fulton county grand jury in its March April presentments.

After recommending amalgamation of the two school systems, the presentments suggested support for the clause in the new proposed state constitution providing for the election of members of boards of education instead of appointment by grand juries. Members of the city board are elected and those of the county board appointed.

After making these recommendations, the grand jury formally announced reappointments of Arthur Wrigley and George P. Whitman to the county board for four-year terms.

The grand jury reported yesterday to Judge A. L. Etheridge the results of its investigation of county affairs.

Regarding the senior officers of the county police, the jury said:

RETIREMENTS RECOMMENDED

"It is the opinion of this grand jury that Chief George Mathieson, Assistant Chief J. C. Oliver and Captain J. C. Butler, who have all served the county honestly and faithfully for a long period of time, and who, in our judgment are too old and infirm to properly perform their respective duties, should be retired on pensions commensurate with their salaries."

Mathieson, who is 66, became a deputy sheriff in 1900 and joined the county police force when it was organized in 1908. He became chief in 1913. Chief Oliver, now 74, also became a county law enforcement officer in 1900. Captain Butler became one in 1907 and is also 74 years old.

PATROLLING CRITICIZED

Under the county police pension system, its men may retire, provided they are 55 and have served for 25 years, on a pension of $75 per month. Mathieson's salary is $460 per month, Oliver's $335 and Butler's $285.

The jury sharply criticized the county police for failure to patrol some sections of the county adequately, saying:

"This grand jury finds that in some sections the county police are not adequately patrolling the territory assigned to them, but are riding for the most part on the good paved roads of the county, and we recommend that this be corrected at once.

"We also recommend that additional officers be assigned to the Campbell county district permanently; and we further recommend that the authorities work out a schedule for the periodic patrolling of the secondary highways of the county. In checking county police records, it was noted that while the majority of officers were making deductions on their reports for private use of their vehicles, some few were making no mileage deductions whatever for such use. We therefore recom

Ban on Sunday Deliveries Hit By Producers

By The Associated Press

A government regulation limiting milk deliveries to six days weekly is forcing the Georgia Milk Producers' Confederation, Inc., to pour 1,000 gallons of milk down the drain every Monday, James D. Gay, manager, has reported.

The office of defense transportation, in an order on September 17, limited milk deliveries to six days as a means of conserving gasoline, tires and equipment.

Gay said his firm, a cooperative agency handling milk for 160 farmers in 19 counties, had poured out 3,000 gallons of milk so far—the receipts for the past three Sundays—because it lacked both storage space and equipment to deliver two days' receipts in one day.

He said five appeals had been made to ODT for relief and that officials of the firm were contacting charitable agencies to donate

The high reading yesterday was 71 degrees while the low was 52 degrees.

Tall Fish Story: But 2 Boats Sank—Ask Coast Guard!

SEA ISLE CITY, N. J., April 28.—(AP)—Skippers of two commercial fishing boats here are telling one fish story which they can prove. They caught so many mackerel Wednesday night that both boats sank in 15 feet of water off Townsend's Inlet.

Skipper Camile Buffalo was bringing in an estimated 5,000 pounds of fish when the boat grounded on a sand bar and sank. Dewey Monicetti, with a boat loaded with 8,000 pounds, started to the rescue, but his boat also foundered. Five crewmen were rescued by a municipal boat.

Coast Guardsmen salvaged the boats, but—"you should have seen the ones that got away."

19 Killed, 4 Hurt In Transport Crash

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., April 28.—(AP)—Nineteen persons were killed, two seriously injured and two less severely hurt in the crash of a transport plane about 15 miles east of here, the Coconino county sheriff's office reported today.

Although the plane was not immediately identified, the 11th Naval District at San Diego, Cal., previously reported a transport overdue at Winslow, Ariz., stating that a search was in progress.

Sheriff's deputies said they received word from naval officials at Winslow that its missing plane was last reported at 12.33 a. m. (M. W. T.) from the vicinity of Ash Fork and Williams, about 60 miles west of the crash scene. A light snow was falling at the time.

Dr. A. H. Sherman and an ambulance went to the scene, in rugged country about five miles south of Winona to bring the injured to Flagstaff.

Finding of the wreckage was reported by deputies, who were searching in radio-equipped cars.

Navy Sternly Opposes Consolidated Command

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—The Navy today opposed immediate action on Army proposals for consolidating the armed forces into a unified command, expressed enthusiasm on Capitol Hill for early congressional action on a unified command.

Any action now, said Undersecretary of the Navy James Forrestal, would find the Navy "definitely in opposition," and any thing later should come only after careful consideration.

Forrestal testified before the Woodrum committee created by the house to blueprint postwar military policy. The same committee earlier this week heard War Secretary Stimson urge that the general principle of consolidation be determined "as soon as possible." At the same time Lieutenant General Brehon Somervell, head of the Army Service Forces, suggested some phases of consolidation, such as procurement of supplies, could be started without waiting for the war to end.

NAVY'S POSITION

The pipe-smoking Forrestal bluntly told the committee he was not prepared to say the Navy believes consolidation is desirable.

"We are not trying to be subtle," he added, "but the idea is not clear at this time."

The Navy's position, he explained, is:

"That the whole question of military organization deserves and should receive a most objective and thorough study. It believes the question should be approached by detailed examination with the conclusion to be reached at the end of such an examination rather than acting upon the assumption that the case is already established."

Some committee members, who earlier had looked upon consolidation as a cut-and-dried proposition needing only a legislative blueprint, predicted after hearing Forrestal that the committee would take its good time before making any definite recommendation.

Others viewed the Navy's attitude as being motivated by fear that consolidation might find the sea forces in the position of being the smaller of the armed services, while the future, after demobilization of the Army, probably would see the Navy as the predominant arm because of its wartime size. Committee sentiment is overwhelmingly in favor of retaining for the United States the world's largest Navy.

ARMY TO CONTROL

"Should a consolidation occur now or immediately after the war," one committee member said, "the Army would control the unified department. But later on, when the Army is cut down to peacetime strength, the Navy will have the say-so."

Without independent organization, Forrestal said, the United States now might not have its modern dive bombers or air cooled motors "had not the Navy pushed its belief in and ideas about these things."

Forrestal said he believed "the concept of the joint chiefs of staff" under which the Army, the Navy and the Air Forces now cooperate voluntarily in a unification of command" should be continued after the war.

Vice Admiral R. S. Edwards, chief of staff to the commander in chief, told the committee, "The immediate need is to get along with the war. The present organization is producing effective results."

Leaders Mourn Secretary Knox

STIMSON SHOCKED

War Secretary Stimson: "I am deeply shocked and stricken at the news of Frank Knox's death. Our relations were not merely official, they had grown into a close, affectionate friendship based on the mutual confidence which had grown between us. In that atmosphere we were able to approach every difficult problem arising between our departments."

Senator George, Democrat, Georgia: "The country is saddened by the death of Secretary Knox, the first casualty in the cabinet in this war period. As secretary he has vigorously prosecuted the war in all areas where the Navy has been involved."

Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the House Naval Committee: "Secretary Knox was one of the outstanding secretaries of the Navy Department in the last quarter of a century."

HULL LAUDS IDEALS

Secretary of State Hull in a statement said:

"It is with a deep sense of grief that I have learned of the passing of our distinguished secretary of the Navy, Colonel Knox.

Kennel Club Show Opens Today at Two o'Clock

By RUTH STANTON COGILL.

The Atlanta Kennel Club's 32nd annual all-breed dog show swings into action at the city auditorium this afternoon at 2 o'clock with 265 of the country's finest champions competing for honors. The show this year is something of a record on the Kennel Club book, as some 200 of the contestants are local dogs.

The Cocker Spaniel, America's most popular little dog, runs true to form again and heads the entry list with 62 of its breed. Runner-up is the Boston terrier with a round 30 while boxers and fox terriers have tied for third place with 16 entries each.

Most notable entry at the show will be the Cocker Spaniel, Ch. Stockdale Highlight, flashy red and white, who has just joined the ranks of Atlanta's canine "400." Highlight was recently purchased by Bobbets Kennels, of 1680 Pace's Ferry road from the famous Van Meter Kennel in Van Nuys, Cal. Idlewood Kennels will handle the dog.

This afternoon's judging program is as follows:

2 P. M.—All sporting breeds except Boston terriers and poodles. All hound breeds. All working breeds.

8 P. M.—Boston terriers, poodles, all terrier breeds and all toy breeds.

Admission to the show is 60 cents for adults and 30 cents for children; also men and women in uniform.

"TIMELY BUT LATE"—

McCarran called Byrd's resolution "timely but a little late."

"I suspect," he added, "that Senator Byrd was not aware the (judiciary) committee had already undertaken this investigation."

Administration leaders on the House Rules Committee had anticipated they could bottle up the proposal there and were surprised when beaten.

Backers of the resolution declared that if the President can seize such a mercantile establishment he can take homes and "hamburger stands."

The resolution would create a special house committee of seven to investigate the seizure. The powerful rules committee virtually sets the pattern for floor consideration of legislation.

Angry words marked the committee's consideration of the resolution, offered by Representative Dewey, Republican, of Illinois, who represents the district in which the big plant on the Chicago river is located.

It got through the committee on a 6 to 5 vote only after it had been amended to eliminate a special instruction that the investigators determine whether there is "authority in law" for the seizure and whether the opinion of Attorney General Francis Biddle authorizing the action showed "adequate grounds" for his conclusions.

This left authorization simply for a general inquiry "with respect to the seizure by the United States," authorized by the President. The company failed to comply with a white house request that it resume contract relations with striking union employes.

Representative Delaney, Democrat of New York, raised a question in the rules committee whether it was not "unusual" to give consideration to a resolution introduced only yesterday, but Representative Smith, Democrat of Virginia, retorted:

"It's more unusual to go out and take someone's property."

Chairman Sabath, Democrat, Illinois, opposed immediate consideration but on the majority side of the table, Representative Cox, Democrat, Georgia, joined Smith in demanding a hearing for Dewey, urging his resolution be sent to the floor.

It was a stormy session in which Dewey demanded to know whether there is any authority under the statutes or the Constitution for the seizure. Sabath said those now complaining were the same who once demanded seizure of the coal mines.

"You can't put merchandise in the same class," Dewey retorted. "Montgomery Wards is like any country store."

COX DEMANDS ANSWER

"When is this thing going to reach the hamburger stand and the peanut vendor," asked Cox, and Dewey rejoined: "That's what I want to know."

In the heat of exchange, Representative Allen, Republican, Illinois, raised a question of impeachment proceedings against Attorney General Biddle, drawing a chorus of "no's" from his colleagues. Allen later explained he did not mean to propose that Biddle be impeached, but had raised a question whether congress could not institute impeachment proceedings in an instance of this kind.

After the session, Sabath reiterated his opposition to the resolution as "tending to encroach on the rights of the courts." He said he did not know when it would be brought up in the house and expressed the view that "by that time, everything will be settled and adjusted."

Illinois Republicans in the house, however, said they intended to press for action.

Across the capitol in the senate Republicans opened a general attack on the seizure as Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, shouted that under Biddle's opinion "the government could move in and take over every corner drug store in the country."

If the ruling stands, he said, "then if we don't tend our victory gardens in a manner that pleases the President, the government could come in and seize our very back yards."

RIDICULOUS, BARKLEY SAYS

Majority Leader Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, called the statement "so ridiculous that it falls of its own weight or lack of weight."

Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, told the senate the seizure has "ominous implications which should receive a very quickened public interest," and asked:

"Are we coming to a Gestapo in this country? Does Francis Biddle cherish the ambition to be an American Himmler?"

He said the government action against Montgomery Ward has no legal backing. "Today," he continued, "the American people are in the hands of a centralized and entrenched bureaucracy such as America has never before known."

Byrd introduced in the senate a resolution for a "full and complete" investigation of the seizure by the Senate Judiciary Committee. He said he would call it up for passage next Tuesday.

The subject was aired momentarily on the floor when Representative Hoffman, Republican, of Michigan, told the chamber that Montgomery Ward "is fighting your battle and my battle, the battle to insist on the right to go on under the constitution."

Representative Ramspeck, Democrat, Georgia, the majority whip, replied that the War Labor Board "may have made a mistake," but the company had recourse to the courts and should not be permitted "to defy the government."

Teacher Wage Hike Predicted

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 28.—(AP)—Georgia's new general assembly will adopt a recommended appropriation and enact legislation providing for a cost of living bonus for teachers, Governor Ellis Arnall predicted here today. Speaking before the Kiwanis club, Governor Arnall said he was not in favor of the state's taking over the Atlanta city school system, adding that he felt the people of Atlanta were competent with ability to handle their own affairs.

The governor said he felt the state should pay the cost of the teachers' bonus, which would amount to $2,500,000 annually, and that the Georgia school system also appreciated the [illegible]

Forecasting the administration of Governor Arnall, Representative Carl Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, said here today that he felt the state would be in good hands during the next two years. Speaking before the Cobb county Kiwanis club, Congressman Vinson said he felt the administration of Governor Arnall would be one of the most progressive in the history of Georgia, adding that he felt the people of Georgia were fortunate in having such a man as their governor.

Air War

escorted one bomber formation to Avord, while the bulletin made no mention of escorts for the fleet which attacked the Cherbourg section 70 miles across the channel.

An abortive attack by German fighters on the formation that flew to Avord was broken off by the fighter escort. "This was the only encounter with the enemy during the day," a U. S. communique said.

In the afternoon a fleet of perhaps 250 Liberators crossed the 20-mile-wide Dover strait and pounded the Pas-de-Calais area. Thunderbolt fighters shepherded this formation over territory which may soon be the scene of bitter ground battles.

Hundreds of other fighter-bombers, American and Allied, ranged across France itching for aerial combat, but the Germans showed little eagerness, and some crews never sighted a single plane. The attacks on Nazi ground installations ranged from Tours to Paris and northern France.

Lightning fighters newly converted into fighter-bombers hit an airfield repair plant at Tours and few aggressive patrols as far as Reims, 150 miles inside France, without sighting a single enemy aircraft.

Marauder medium bombers attacked an airfield in northern France. Thunderbolts attacked another airfield in central France and dive-bombed several in northern France, scoring hits on parked planes, hangars and dispersal areas. Mustang fighter-bombers dove through a break in the clouds over Paris and bombed and machine-gunned enemy hangars at Le Bourget, Paris' main airport. RAF Mustangs destroyed an enemy plane southwest of Paris and also attacked objectives in northern France. It was estimated that 4,800 tons of explosives had been dropped in the day's 2,500 sorties.

German Parers Blown to Switzerland

BERN, Switzerland, April 28.—(AP)—During last night's RAF raid on Friedrichshafen air pressure from the exploding bombs was so great German newspapers and radio towards were blown across Lake Constance to Romanshorn, on the Swiss side, news dispatches reported tonight.

In the Swiss town people were hurled back and windows broken by the pressure. The town shook as though in an earthquake area. The attack was described as overtaking all previous raids in the Lake Constance area.

Hoover, Luce GOP Speakers

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover and Representative Clare Boothe Luce, Republican, Connecticut, have been invited to address the Republican national convention starting June 26 in Chicago and have accepted, the GOP national committee announced today.

The invitations were extended by Chairman Harrison E. Spangler of the national committee. The convention arrangements committee which met recently in Chicago authorized him to arrange special speeches other than those to be delivered by Governor Earl Warren, of California, as keynoter and Representative Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, house minority leader, as permanent chairman.

Hoover addressed the 1936 and 1940 conventions in Cleveland and Philadelphia. His Cleveland speech received a great ovation and led to a "We want Hoover" demonstration.

Mrs. Luce, author, playwright, legislator, was among those considered to keynote the coming convention. She will be a delegate from her home state.

TAX GAIN

DAWSON, Ga., April 28.—Tax assessments for the city of Dawson showed an increase of approximately $52,000 this year over last year's assessed value of $1,505,810, according to R. R. Marlin member of the tax assessors board. The estimate was based on returns filed with the board during their recent session.

FBI Speaker Defends 'Kids'

Charges of delinquency were hurled last night in the chapel of the First Baptist church but not at the youth of the nation, currently called war hysterical and low moraled.

Instead, Frank C. Holloman, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Atlanta, last night assailed the adults of the city and nation as delinquent.

"Adults of today are lacking in moral responsibility," he said, "and furthermore the majority are long-haired theorists who use only words and not actual cures when trying to devise a remedy for the current rate of crime and misdemeanor among juveniles."

"There is no need to fool ourselves," he insisted. "Adults are salving their conscience in attributing a blood-curdling situation, really begun because of their own neglect and complacence, to the juveniles of the nation," Holloman charged.

Most grown-ups depend upon the judge's humanity and kindliness to keep a wayward youngster from straying too far, Holloman insisted.

"When a juvenile gets himself into court, facing sentence, he is virtually buried—there is no need to help him then," he declared.

The FBI director spoke to a unit conference of "Teen Age Plans for the Future." The assembly was a trial meet and will be repeated next week in 75 cities throughout the nation as a result of success achieved here.

Invasion

Allies should invade through Denmark. They said 20 American airmen recently forced down in Denmark still were the object of an intensive German search.

Their accounts, however, did not give a clear reason why Denmark was cut off from the outside world.

AIR OFFENSIVE GROWS

From this island base itself history's greatest aerial offensive was growing in intensity, and the air commanders were openly and officially referring to it as the "eve of invasion" offensive, but everything possible was being done to keep the enemy guessing as to the exact date.

The report of an air attack on invasion vessels in western England was sent from Berlin by the correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen, who added that great quantities of Allied shipping were madded in southeast England channel ports.

Today's German communique said that "heavy bomber formations attacked ship concentrations and other strategically important targets in the range of the British southwest coast with telling effect," and this may have been the basis for the Swedish correspondent's report of "invasion vessels" being hit.

The Berlin communique also said that Nazi motor torpedo boats attacked a destroyer escorted British convoy on the English south coast this morning, torpedoing a destroyer and sinking three of the convoyed vessels.

MEDITERRANEAN ACTIVITY

"The latest naval clashes off the Atlantic coast and in the channel," said a German high command spokesman as quoted by the Berlin radio, "and finally the glaringly obvious displacement of the center of gravity of the Anglo-American air raids to the occupied western territories and to the strategic communications centers of southwestern Germany, must of necessity be regarded primarily from the general point of view of the expected onslaught."

The Berlin correspondent for the Swiss newspaper Die Tat said that foreign newspapermen there were betting on the invasion coming between May 6 and June 7. A Turkish commentator said, "We can take it for granted that the next few days or weeks will witness the most important events of the war." In Moscow the official Communist newspaper Pravda observed: "Conditions are favorable now for powerful blows, not only from the east but from the south and west."

Petain Warns On Civil War Danger

LONDON, April 28.—(AP)—Marshal Philippe Petain broadcast a warning to his invasion-anticipating countrymen tonight against the danger of civil war and urged them to disregard calls to revolt and remain "loyal" to the German army.

Declaring that Hitler's legions are defending Europe "from Bolshevism," the aged chief of state told the French in a five-minute broadcast that the calls to revolt come from "those far away who do not participate in the risks they ask you to run."

"They would like to drag France into disaster," he said.

Roosevelt Asks 3 Stars For Brereton and Giles

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today nominated two more major generals to be lieutenant generals. If they are confirmed it will bring to 35 the Army's total holding that high rank.

The two whose names were sent to the senate were Lewis Hyde Brereton, commanding general of the Ninth Air Force based in England, and Barney McKinney Giles, chief of air staff, headquarters AAF, Washington, D. C.

MARKUPS EXTENDED

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—The Office of Price Administration today extended through May the cents-per-pound markups retailers have used since January to determine ceiling prices for fresh fish and seafood. A new summer schedule or country-wide retail markups is in preparation and will be announced soon, OPA said.

BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings yesterday totaled $29,000,200 as compared with $21,000,100 for the corresponding day last year, the Atlanta Clearing House Association reported.

RECONDITIONING MEN—Mentally and physically disabled men are being reconditioned at Lawson General hospital according to the most modern methods discovered by English army surgeons, who have been treating disabled soldiers for several years. Here's a view made in a ward yesterday during the first conference of Fourth Service Command medical officers.

Lawson Patients Get Exercise From Day They Can Move Hand

Borrowing an idea from the British, the American Army has successfully launched a vast "reconditioning" program for wounded and disabled men that is already reducing hospitalization by an estimated 25 per cent and may reach 50 per cent.

Additionally, thousands of both mentally and physically disabled men will return to normal civilian lives, whereas in previous wars they had long histories of hospitalization or were unable to earn a livelihood when mustered out.

These facts were revealed yesterday as Army medical authorities met at Lawson General hospital to discuss the revolutionary program put into effect last September. Previously only a few hospitals had experimented on a partial basis after the British brought the idea to America in April, 1943.

Brigadier General W. L. Sheep, Lawson commanding general, estimated that an average of 25 per cent was being cut from the time soldiers now spend in hospitals as compared with the last war.

GIVEN REGULAR EXERCISE

All hospitals, here and abroad, with more than 500 beds, have adopted the program. If a soldier is expected to be hospitalized a month or more, he is sent to one of these hospitals. Here, from the day he can move even one hand, he is given regular exercise and kept busy mentally.

The program permits no "idleness of mind and body," Colonel Augustus Thorndike, director of the reconditioning division, surgeon general's office, declared. However, no instruction in arms or combat equipment is given.

Brigadier General C. C. Hillman, chief of professional service, surgeon general's office, said the first job was to explain to both the man and his family the disabling condition and purpose of the program. Then it is the job to rebuild the man's morale, he added, stimulate his will to fight or return to civil life, and orientate him to the war effort.

Major Arthur A. Esslinger, chief of the reconditioning branch of the surgeon general's office, explained that the intense physical and mental exercises must be under complete medical sanction, adapted to the individual's particular injury. The work load must be built up steadily to the day the man has recovered.

A trip through the miles of hospital ward corridors on the 140-acre reservation showed the whole vast program in all its stages.

First was Class 1, where patients were undergoing heavy gym exercise. They were near complete recovery and nearly ready to go back into combat service, they had been removed from hospital wards to live again in military atmosphere.

Class 2 patients had qualified as trainees and were beginning to receive fairly heavy exercise. They too had been removed from hospital regimen and were living at the "advanced" reconditioning section.

OTHER CLASSES

Class 3 patients were able to move around but were still receiving treatment.

Class 4 patients were bedridden.

Among these latter two classes were men with an arm or leg missing and other major injuries. However, they were exercising by groups at the bedside or in the bed performing special exercises.

Elsewhere in the program, permanently disabled men were receiving special instruction and medicale treatment to refit them for civil life. After the last war it was up to the Veterans' Administration to care for armless or legless men. Today these men receive artificial limbs and learn to use them, thus decreasing the number of misfits.

Reconditioning is divided into three branches—physical and educational reconditioning and occupational therapy. Describing the occupational therapy, General Hillman said it was not allowed to "deteriorate into work details" to do odd jobs about the hospital.

Cadet Weds Uruguayan On Two Hours' Leave

BAINBRIDGE, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—Air Cadet Kermit S. Midthun and his 19-year-old South American bride of yesterday were on their way to his new station in Pennsylvania today but traveling separately.

After coming from her home in Montevideo, Uruguay, expecting to meet and marry her fiance in Miami Monday, Leonora Larrea found on her arrival there that he had been transferred to the Bainbridge Army air field.

Miss Larrea immediately proceeded here, only to find Midthun on the eve of departing for Pennsylvania. A sympathetic commanding officer granted the young cadet two hours' leave, however, and an interested public relations section arranged a wedding in the post chapel. The ceremony was performed by a Protestant chaplain, Matthew E. Boozer.

The couple, who will be reunited when they reach the Pennsylvania college where he will take preflight training, met in Montevideo when they both were employed in the United States embassy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Midthun, of Froid, Mont.

Telephoto Equipment Of INS Fire-Damaged

Ventilating and telephoto equipment in the Western Union building was badly damaged by a fire believed to have originated in a restaurant ventilator.

The fire, starting on the ground floor of the building early last night, rapidly climbed up the ventilator shaft, spreading to offices of the International News Service, on the second floor of the building, where the wirephoto and other photographic equipment was damaged.

It then spread into a cloak room for employes of the Western Union, located on the third floor, damaging clothing. Climbing rapidly up the shaft, the flames then shot out on the top of the building, doing considerable damage to the roof.

40 AND 8 "WRECK"

The Voiture 217, Forty and Eight, will have a "Promenade and Wreck" at 12 noon today, announced P. W. Brandeburger, head of publicity. Sixteen will be initiated and registration will be $1.50.

More Eligible For New Tires

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—All motorists with "B" and "C" gasoline ration books will be eligible for new passenger car tires beginning next Monday and "A" book holders will again be able to obtain ration certificates for used tires.

A substantial increase in allocations of new synthetic tires for civilians makes it possible, Price Administrator Chester Bowles announced, to extend eligibility to include all motorists using their cars for occupational driving. Previously, only persons in most essential occupations were eligible for new tires, with distribution generally limited to "C" book holders.

May quotas established by the office of the rubber director provide a total of 1,300,000 new tires for civilians in May. The number available in April was 1,050,000.

While "A" book holders are again eligible for used tires, OPA pointed out that only a few are left. These drivers have been in eligible for tires of any kind since last July.

British Agree With Stettinius

LONDON, April 28.—(AP)—The United States and Britain have reached a "large measure of common ground" on a wide field of subjects dealing with current and postwar problems, as a result of the conferences of Undersecretary of State Edward R. Stettinius Jr. with high British officials, a joint communique announced tonight.

Informal talks "have been of great assistance in the task of coordinating policies and all those concerned in both governments have expressed great satisfaction with the results," the communique said.

During the three-week period "opportunities have been taken to keep the Soviet and Chinese governments informed as to the course of discussions," it added.

Bolivia Shaken By Conspiracy

LA PAZ, Bolivia, April 28.—(AP)—The Bolivian government announced tonight that a vast conspiracy had been broken up with the detention of numerous revolutionaries and that a state of siege had been declared throughout the country.

No details were given, but an announcement by the government said that Acting President Major Gualberto Villaroel acted constitutionally with the consent of his cabinet to preserve public order in the face of subversive activities.

No public disturbances were reported.

Bolivia has been in an uneasy situation since a revolutionary junta overthrew the government and took control in December, 1943.

The new regime, with Major Gualberto Villaroel as president and Victor Paz Estenssoro as head of its revolutionary party, has not been recognized by the United States and most other American republics.

There were rumors of an attempted counter-revolution in February. These were never confirmed, but the Brazilian radio on February 21 said several opposition leaders to the revolutionary regime had been arrested for "spreading destructive rumors."

The regime, in an apparent effort to regularize its position internationally, has promised the regular elections next July 2 with several cabinet members having stepped out and leaving Villaroel as acting president until a president can be regularly elected and inaugurated.

Georgia Ship Company Second in Safety Contest

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—The St. Johns Shipbuilding Company at Jacksonville, Fla., the winner of a safety contest, will have the honor of naming a Liberty ship for Raymond Clapper, newspaper columnist and radio commentator, killed in an airplane accident in the South Pacific.

The Florida company defeated the J. A. Jones Construction Company, Inc., of Brunswick, Ga., by so narrow a margin, the Maritime Commission announced yesterday, that a field audit was necessary to determine the final result of the contest, conducted during March.

Soviets Slay 800 Nazis Attacking Pole Position

LONDON, Saturday April 29.—(AP)—Red army troops killed 800 Germans and Hungarians in repulsing attacks southeast of Stanislawow in former Poland yesterday, and Soviet long-range aircraft touched off fires and explosions Thursday night in a mass attack on Lwow, 65 miles northwest of Stanislawow, a Moscow communique said early today in announcing "no substantial changes" on the land front.

The only reference to the Crimean front was a midnight supplement which said that a 1,000-ton tanker and a landing barge were sunk in the area of besieged Sevastopol by Russian naval planes. A 600-ton tanker and minesweeper also were sunk in the Gulf of Finland, the bulletin said.

A German communique said that fresh Russian attempts to break through with strong forces north of Iasi, in Romania, had been frustrated, that Soviet efforts to enlarge bridgeheads across the Lower Dnestr to the east had been repulsed, and that local Red army thrusts at Sevastopol, in the Crimea, had collapsed.

Sevastopol has been under the fire of Red army guns now for two weeks.

Berlin also told of the repulse of Soviet troops in the east-central part of Poland around Kowel, 170 miles from Warsaw, and told of air attacks on rear-line supply points, where the Russians have been reported mobilizing men and equipment for a new offensive.

Moscow's broadcast bulletin, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said that during the mass attack on Lwow one force of Red airmen "blockaded" an enemy airdrome near that strategic city, one of the largest rail points in Europe, and fired a column of German trucks on a road leading into Lwow.

In another attack on Orsha, German strongpoint in White Russia, the Russian fliers set fires on a Nazi airdrome and fuel and ammunition dumps and parked planes, the bulletin said.

Tomatoes, Corn, Beets Struck Off Ration List

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—Tomatoes, corn, beets, asparagus and four other vegetables will be added Sunday to the list of processed foods housewives may buy without ration stamps.

May values announced today by the Office of Price Administration include a zero point rating for canned spinach, leafy vegetables, blackeye peas and Garbanzo beans, a foreign dish ingredient.

The move making eight additional vegetables point-free was taken to clear store shelves for the new season's pack, now in production.

"The present low values on canned vegetables may be compared to an old fashioned year end bargain sale," said OPA Administrator Chester Bowles. "When the supply of 'point bargains' has disappeared, higher 'point prices' will have to be restored to spread new supplies evenly through the year."

Current values on No. 2 can sizes of the more important vegetables made point-free are: Tomatoes, 8 points; corn, 8 (vacuum packed, 6); asparagus, 10; beets, 3; leafy greens, 4, and spinach, 6.

SOUPS AND JELLIES

In other changes in processed food values, reductions are ordered for all condensed and concentrated soups, the type generally sold. From the current four-point value on 10½-ounce cans, two points are trimmed for clam chowder and other seafood soups, while all other kinds are cut one point.

A number of varieties of fruit butter as well as grape and tomato preserves and apple, grape, mint and plum jellies in one-pound containers are reduced two points to a new value of two. But raspberry and strawberry jams and preserves, in short supply, are increased to 16 points a pound jar, double the present value.

Also sharply boosted is the value on cranberries and cranberry sauce, up eight points to a new total of 15 for a No. 2 can. Prevailing high point values on all other canned fruits are maintained.

CATSUP AND CHILI

To slow the rapid movement on tomato catsup and chili sauce, the ration cost of these items goes from 23 points to 30 for a 14-ounce bottle, but spaghetti sauce, packaged with cheese, gets a value of three instead of six points for an eight-ounce jar.

Heavy demand hikes the point value on a 46-ounce can of tomato juice to two points to 18, while the six-pound size will cost 36 points instead of 30.

Also listed on the May chart are point values for home canned foods that are sold. For containers over 14 ounces and including one pound, two ounces, points assigned are: Fruits, 10; juices, 2; vegetables, 1; spreads, 4, and special products, 12.

The point-free rating assigned last month for all frozen foods is continued through May.

Milk

the milk now going to waste to needy families.

The confederation, Gay said, delivers its milk to 15 retail stores operaetd by the co-operative in Atlanta and one day's delivery requires less than six gallons of gasoline. The 15 stores, he added, serve between 12,000 and 15,000 customers.

Other plants will not buy the firm's surplus milk on Monday, Gay said, and the company is prevented from using much of the surplus in ice cream because of a regulation limiting the quantity of milk for that purpose to 65 per cent of the firm's supply.

"The government" he said "is offering a subsidy to increase milk production and now it looks like it is doing everything possible to reduce production."

Regional ODT officials here said the latest appeal of the firm is under consideration. The regional office issued the following statement:

"The original request of the Georgia Milk Producers Confederation for permission to make Sunday deliveries was denied by the Atlanta district office of ODT. The case was appealed by the firm to the regional office, where it was again denied, and finally to the Washington ODT office.

ODT STUDIES CASE

"The late Joseph B. Eastman, ODT director, sent an investigator to Atlanta to study the firm's case and after all the facts were available made a decision sustaining the district office and denying permission for Sunday deliveries. Mr. Eastman at that time advised the firm that they might submit another appeal this spring if there were any new circumstances which would warrant it.

"That appeal was filed with the Atlanta district office of ODT several days ago and is now under consideration.

The ODT spokesman pointed out that not a single general exception had been made so far to the gasoline conservation order on deliveries.

Gay said that following one of the appeals, Eastman's office suggested that the milk could be stored outside refrigeration cabinets when the temperature is not above 50 degrees. City health regulations, the manager said, require that all milk must be stored in refrigerators.

J. C. Newton, assistant manager of the co-operative, said trucks operated by the firm now are being loaded to 230 per cent of their original capacity and could not make two days' delivery in one, even if the company had the storage space.

"We would have to make just as many trips in six days," he declared, "if we had the needed space to store the milk over Sunday."

EMORY ALUMNAE DINNER

The senior cadet nurses of Emory University hospital will be dinner guests of the Emory Alumnae Association at 8:30 p. m. today at the Pig 'n' Whistle. Mrs. L. M. Garrett, the president, has announced.

Patrol Clashes Sharp in Italy

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, IN NAPLES, April 28.—(AP)—Sharp patrol clashes were the only noteworthy activity reported at the Italian front today while bad weather again held air operations to a bare minimum.

Enemy patrols were particularly active in the Adriatic sector. A force of undetermined strength infiltrated the Allied position immediately north of Crecchio, but was driven out by counterattack.

Occasional artillery fire punctuated the lull when rain, dampening the entire front, caused cancellation of all but 180 sorties by the great Mediterranean air forces. Spitfires and Hurricanes of the coastal air force were able to complete one mission, an attack on a radio station at Cap Gario, south of Durazzo in Albania. Direct hits were scored on the main building, spokesmen said.

Bishop Lists Peace Progress

KANSAS CITY, April 28.—(AP)—Too many Americans think that this nation will win the war but are discouraged and apathetic about is chances to win the peace, Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, of Boston, believes.

Bishop Oxnam, head of the Methodists' "crusade for new world order," listed in an interview today these reasons for believing "extraordinary progress" has been made toward peace:

(1) The various groups already engaged in international co-operation prove it can be done. He lists the constant meetings of military leaders, the food conference, the relief agencies, lend-lease and the congress studying stabilization of currency as going international concerns.

(2) For at least two years leaders, both in and out of the government, have been trying to fill up ruts on the road to peace, something that wasn't started last time until the war was won.

He thinks enough progress has been made to predict how an international group probably would work. Each nation would keep its own sovereignty, with an executive council set up for the international chores. This council would would not be located in any one place, he believes, but would move from capital to capital of the participating nations.

He predicts that eventually this international organization will have its own police force, but that this still is too radical an idea. It will be up to Great Britain, Russia, China and the United States to enforce the peace at the start.

In all this, the bishop believes, the church should plan an increasingly important part.

Grady Hospital Named Distributor For Penicillin

Grady hospital will be the distribution center to Atlantans for the wonder drug, penicillin, according to a dispatch from the War Production Board in Washington.

To Dr. Paul B. Beeson of the Grady staff will fall the task of determining who in Atlanta shall receive the drug, of which there are to be only limited supplies available.

Patients outside of the city needing penicillin must seek an allotment from Dr. Chester S. Keefer, of Boston, Mass., chairman of the Committee of Chemotherapy National Research council in charge of distribution of the drug.

J. B. Hand, Real Estate, Trolley Operator, Dies

J. B. Hand, 57, street car operator and real estate dealer, of 2340 Paul avenue, Riverside, died Thursday at the residence. He was the founder of the Hand subdivision in Riverside.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. today at the Carey Park Baptist church, the Rev. J. H. Lawson, the Rev. L. H. Hamic, the Rev. W. G. Huckaby, the Rev. Z. Z. Frazier and the Rev. Mr. Bryant officiating. Burial will be in Hollywood cemetery.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Lucille Rutter, of Houston, Texas, Mrs. Alice Sullivan and Miss Janie Hand, of Atlanta; two sisters, Mrs. Adele Witcher, of Miami, and Mrs. J. H. Strain, of Hapeville, and two brothers, B. B. Hand, of Knoxville, Tenn., and J. M. Hand, of College Park.

mend that the party charged with the responsibility of checking these records definitely ascertain if these cars are actually being used on official business 100 per cent of the time, and if not, to force these parties to make the proper deductions for private use."

YOUNG POLICE WANTED

The presentments suggested that the vacancies created by the retirement of the three senior officers be filled by 'young and aggressive men."

Other recommendations were:

That sanitary facilities in county schools and in some other county buildings be improved.

That the investigation of the bail bond business be continued.

That the solicitor general fully investigate all cases before presentation to the grand jury.

That overcrowded conditions at the colored industrial farm be remedied.

That a law be passed requiring pawnbrokers to fingerprint persons offering articles to them.

That adequate facilities be provided for the Boys' and Tech High schools.

The grand jury praised Chief M. A. Hornsby for his efficient operation of the city police department and found conditions at Fulton tower and the city jail excellent.

'Old South Seems Like a New West,' Capital's AP Chief Comments Here

"They call it the old south, but it looks and sounds more like a new west to me."

This was the comment of Paul Miller, assistant general manager of the Associated Press and chief of the AP's Washington bureau. Miller, a native of Oklahoma and once editor of a newspaper in an oil boom town, was in Atlanta yesterday on a trip that will take him on to Florida for the primary election there May 2.

Paul Miller.

"I haven't been here since 1938," Miller said. "I suppose the spirit here must be about the same now as then, but somehow it strikes me more forcibly now.

"Talk of new industries after the war, editorials about the need of more up-to-date farming methods and more livestock-raising, stories about the possibility of a big new business making newsprint from bamboo. . . .

"All that sounds like the talk of people who certainly have eyes and ears to the future. It's inspiring to sense it."

Miller, in his present Associated Press assignment, has supervision of national political coverage of the world's greatest news-gathering organization. He said he was seeing and talking with as many people as he could and hoped to do the same in Florida. He plans to remain in the south another week or 10 days.

American Priest, In Moscow, Meets Stalin, Molotov

LONDON, April 28.—(AP)—The Moscow radio reported tonight that Premier Stalin and Foreign Commissar Molotov had met with Stanislaus Orlemanski, of Springfield, Mass., who is studying the situation of Poles and the Polish army in Russia.

(The trip of Orlemaniski, pastor of Our Lady of the Holy Rosary Catholic church at Springfield, Mass., was criticized Friday by a spokesman of Polish-American groups. He was said to be the first American Catholic priest to enter the Soviet Union since 1934.)

Negro Health Center Okayed

Creation of 16 new positions in the city health department to operate the all-Negro Westside Health Center at 186 Sunset avenue, N. W., in a move to curb the spread of venereal diseases has been approved by the city personnel board and will be sent to council Monday for action of that body.

Dr. James F. Hackney, director of the city health department, said all employes at the new institution will be Negroes including doctors and nurses, and the new facility, which it is expected will be in operation by June 15, will provide an exclusive service for Negroes.

Included among the personnel needed to operate the new clinic are a part-time doctor, two public health nurses, four graduate nurses, seven attendants, one steno-clerk, one typist clerk.

The clinic will be operated co-operatively by the city, county, state and federal governments in a joint effort to reduce the incidence of social diseases. It will provide an exclusive and adequate Negro facility for the first time, and it is expected that its influence will be reflected in a reduction of venereal diseases.

The building, formerly the old Breitenbucher home, cost $16,900 to renovate, and operation cost will be approximately $29,000 annually with the various governmental divisions sharing the expense.

Simple Burial Rites For Cardinal O'Connell

BOSTON, April 28.—(AP)—The earthly remains of William Cardinal O'Connell rested tonight in a field stone crypt in a clump of firs and evergreens that seemed to whisper a final requiem.

Simple burial rites, read in a soft voice by Archbishop Amleto G. Cicagnani, apostolic delegate of Pope Pius XII, furnished the last touch of a week of mourning—an unparalleled demonstration of respect and reverence for the dean of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in America.

Earlier in the day, Archbishop Cicognani celebrated the pontifical funeral mass in the old gray, Gothic cathedral of the Holy Cross, where the aged prelate had presided as a prince of the church for nearly four decades.

Mayflower Descendants Of Georgia Meet Today

The April meeting of the Society of Mayflower Descendants of Georgia will be held at 3 p. m. today at the home of Mrs. William A. Fuller, 976 Piedmont avenue, N. E. Mrs. Frederic C. Rice, state governor, will preside. A life membership in Rabun Gap-Nacoochee Guild will be presented to Mrs. Claude Crayton Smith, honorary governor of the society.

The purchase of the two latest volumes of the Mayflower Index will be reported by Lieutenant Colonel John Soule. Mrs. James E. Hays will be the principal speaker.

Rent Charges Lead to Arrest

James W. Woodruff Sr., of Columbus, Ga., described as one of Georgia's wealthiest men, has been arrested by a United States marshal on a charge of demanding and receiving rents in excess of OPA ceilings and failing to register various dwellings with the rent control office, according to Richard E. LaPosea, chief of the rents and services section of the Atlanta district office of the OPA.

Woodruff, he said, was arrested yesterday morning on a criminal information filed with United States District Attorney T. Hoyt Davis, of Macon, and was released after posting a $1,000 bond.

J. O. Brown, of Columbus, who was arrested and released under $1,000 bodd last week, also was named in criminal informations filed with District Attorney Davis, LaPosea said. Other criminal informations have been filed against Columbus citizens, the names of whom will be released after arrests have been made.

Woodruff, well-known Georgia capitalist, was accused in an 11-count criminal information. Brown was arrested on a 6-count criminal information of demanding and receiving rents in excess of maximum rates posted by the OPA.

Bibb, Baldwin, Thomas Projects Okayed by FWA

Approval of war public works and service projects in Macon, Milledgeville and Thomasville is announced here by Oliver T. Ray, regional director of the Federal Works Agency.

The projects include a hospital addition for student nurses at the City hospital at Macon with a grant of $36,250 to applicant's fund of $24,253, water and sewerage facilities at Thomasville with a grant of $370,450 to applicant's funds of $226,060, and at Milledgeville an addition to the gymnasium for WAVES and SPARS of the Navy and Coast Guard stationed at Georgia State College for Women with a grant of $10,600, to the applicant's fund of $10,500.

J. Fain Johnson, 72, Dies Near Thomaston

THOMASTON, Ga., April 28.—J. Fain Johnson, 72, died yesterday at his home near here. He was a farmer and a retired businessman.

He is survived by his wife, one son, Roy Johnson, of Atlanta; two daughters, Mrs. Etta J. Montgomery, of Tampa, and Mrs. Paul M. Smith, of Key West; one brother, Dr. J. F. L. Johnson, of Roberta.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at Stephens' Funeral Chapel at 11 a. m., with the Rev. A. L. Gilmore officiating. Interment will be in Glenwood cemetery.

Mr. Johnson was a member of the Methodist church and a member of the Upson County AAA Board.

Mrs. J. C. Watts Dies; Final Rites Set in Rome

Mrs. J. C. Watts, formerly of Atlanta and Rome, Ga., died yesterday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. R. B. Dial, of Jackson, Miss. Mrs. Watts was well-known for her work in civic, welfare and P.-T. A. organizations in Atlanta and Rome.

The body will be taken to Rome for funeral services at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the First Baptist church with the Rev. Jackson officiating. Burial will be in Myrtle Hill cemetery.

Besides Mrs. Dial, Mrs. Watts is survived by three sons, John L. Davenport, of Rome; William W. Davenport, of Jacksonville, Fla.; James W. Davenport, of Tampa, Fla., and three grandchildren.

Presbyterian Rally Set Today

Several hundred students from throughout the state will attend a one-day Presbyterian student rally beginning at 4 p. m. and continuing until 10 p. m. today at the North Avenue Presbyterian church.

Dr. Joseph M. Garrison, of Louisville, Ky., will keynote the meeting with an introductory speech at 4 p. m. Discussion groups on "How to Meet Doubt and Temptation" and "Witnessing for Christ on the Campus" will be conducted immediately following Dr. Garrison's talk.

Dinner will be served at 6 p. m., featuring an address by the Rev. Cecil Thompson, of Valdosta, followed by recreation and fellowship services at 8 p. m.

The rally is being sponsored by the educational committees of the Synod of Georgia under the local chairmanship of Chris Corbin. All sessions will be conducted in the educational building of the North Avenue church.

Bibb Company Appoints Three

MACON, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—The Bibb Manufacturing Company announced today appointment of Lawrence R. Brumby as factory manager, P. E. Findlay Jr. as general superintendent of mills and John S. Turner as agent of the corporation at Columbus.

William D. Anderson, chairman of the board of directors of the Bibb Manufacturing Company, said the position of factory manager was a new one made necessary by changes and developments in the textile industry.

Brumby, who was graduated from the textile engineering division of Georgia Tech in 1920, joined the company upon graduation. He was named general superintendent of the Porterdale mill in 1927 and was transferred here as superintendent of the corporation in 1930. He was named general superintendent in 1938.

Findlay, a graduate of Georgia Tech in 1927, became superintendent of the Porterdale mill in 1935. Three years later he came here as superintendent of Mill No. 1. He later went to Columbus and then to Porterdale as general superintendent.

Turner joined the firm in 1920 at Porterdale and was named superintendent of the Osprey mill in 1927. In 1939 he was made general superintendent of the Porterdale division and was transferred to Columbus in 1941 as general superintendent.

Following his appointment, Brumby announced promotions in various divisions. A. J. Dennis, former superintendent of No. 1 mill in Macon, was advanced to superintendency of the Macon division. A. D. Dudney, assistant superintendent at No. 1 mill, was promoted to superintendent.

B. B. Snow, who has been serving as superintendent of the Macon division, has been named superintendent of the Porterdale division. R. M. Stephens will become superintendent of the Columbus-Bibb division.

Bon Homme Richard, Carrier, To Hit Water

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP)—Sixty million dollars' worth of fighting ship slides down the ways into the East river tomorrow when the aircraft carrier Bon Homme Richard is launched at the New York Navy Yard in Brooklyn.

The 27,100-ton floating airport is the 13th carrier of the powerful Essex class built since America's entry into the war and the second to be launched at the New York yard.

A sister ship, the Bennington, hit the water for the first time last February.

The Navy revealed that the 850-foot carrier was designed to carry more than 500,000 pounds of fighting aircraft, or the equivalent of about 80 planes, including fighters, scout observation planes, torpedo bombers and scout bombers. Her top speed was estimated to be in excess of 30 knots.

Macon Airman Downs Nazi Plane Over Europe

LONDON, April 28.—(AP)—One formation of fighter-pilots shot down three Nazi planes in the continuation of the Allied blasting of Europe yesterday.

Lieutenant Durwood E. Mercer, 1822 Sackett street, Macon, Ga., got one.

Captain Harold F. Ogden, Mount Joy Road, Clearfield, Pa., and Lieutenant Robert J. Collins, of Winthrop, Mass., shared the third.

Credited with a ground kill was Major George L. Merritt, Cumming, Ga.

Lieutenant Stanley D. Rames, of Cranston, R. I., and Lieutenant Jack S. Crandell, of Westminster, Md., shared one on the ground.

Secretary Knox

The nation lost in the death of Secretary of Navy Frank Knox, one of its ablest leaders.

An outspoken opponent of the administration's prewar policies, he set an example we all should have followed when, in the dark months of June, 1940, he acquiesced to President Roosevelt's plea for non-partisan unity and accepted, although he had been the Republican presidential nominee only four years previously, a place in the Roosevelt war cabinet.

It was more than a gesture which he and another life long Republican, Henry L. Stimson, made at that time. Smaller men, men who did not have their country's welfare at heart, would have hung back. The role of critic was easier by far than that of participant in those days.

But Knox, laying aside party prejudice, ignoring the factors of the New Deal's domestic philosophy which he found repugnant, Frank Knox accepted the challenge, plunging into the job of bolstering our grossly inadequate naval strength with characteristic vigor. The nation stood in need of his services and, disdaining partisan politics, Frank Knox hurried to man the guns.

That he did his job and did it amazingly well, is attested by Admiral King's voluminous report of a week ago which states, in no uncertain terms, that the American fleet is now the most formidable aggregation of naval power on the surface of the earth's seven seas.

It is nothing short of tragic that death should have taken him at this time. What a pity that he could not have lived a few months longer and witnessed the unprecedented success which will so soon now attend his efforts.

His real work, of course, was done. He had provided, in four brief years, the implements of victory. He had lived to see that Nazi Germany's superiority recognized, the enemy constantly hiding, afraid to venture out and engage in battle. He had won his victory.

This nation owes much to William Frank Knox, a man who was able, in time of crisis, to overlook petty partisanship and concentrate on the main objective.

Auxiliary Police

There should be no objection, on the part of city council, to the recommendation of its police committee that members of the Civilian Defense Auxiliary Police battalions be used to relieve the manpower shortage in the municipal police department.

One hundred hand picked members of the auxiliaries, according to the proposed plan, would work eight hours each a week, filling in the vacancies occasioned by the loss of professional officers to the armed forces.

It is not an impractical scheme. It has worked in numerous cities with notable success. One has only to look to Macon, where—thanks to the work of the auxiliaries—a war-doubled population is served with a force of prewar size, to realize that it is a practical solution to our worsening shortage of career officers.

Atlanta should give thanks, incidentally, that there are available such trained and capable men who are not only able, but willing, to help the city through the present emergency.

Paper Shortage

Apparently the nation-wide appeal for waste paper has not been sufficiently impressive to gain expected results.

The War Production Board has just announced that retail stores throughout the nation will receive only about one-half as much wrapping paper and paper bags during May, June and the balance of April. The shortage will affect every retail store and householder, the WPB announced, and apparently the only relief will come when the people of all classes are hit by the shortage and really make an effort to turn in waste paper of all kinds.

One Atlanta chain store has already warned customers to save used paper bags for future use, and to provide a market basket in which to carry groceries. The entire nation will wake up to this emergency when the country is hit as hard as England has been. Every little bit helps; don't destroy it, turn it in.

Leave Well Enough Alone

Overall living costs in the Atlanta area declined .6 per cent in the three months' period ending March 15.

The national cost of living index, reports the Bureau of Labor Statistics, dropped .5 per cent during the same quarter.

This immediate section and the entire nation, in other words, have witnessed the halting of the surging tides of inflation. Our wartime program of price controls has succeeded in braking what threatened at one time, early in the war, to be a dizzy runaway in the field of consumer costs.

It is good, of course, to know that we have succeeded in slowing and halting inflation. But we cannot now relax. Ours must be a continuing effort, until normal production of consumer commodities is restored.

For that reason it is to be regretted that there is currently under way in congress an effort to enact loopholes into certain of the regulations appertaining to the price stabilization program.

We have finally succeeded, after many false starts, in devising machinery which seems to be holding the line remarkably well. Let us not now, in an effort to eliminate a few squeaks, jeopardize what we have gained.

ROBERT QUILLEN

Weekly Letter

My dear Louise:

As you know, all of the great teachers—the spiritual leaders who are still revered by millions—developed in the ancient civilizations of the Orient.

And though all of them, the wise and scholarly Confucius, the sweet and idealistic Gautama, the Saxon, and the practical and sensuous Mohammed, differed from one another as night differs from day, they were all alike in one particular.

All of them recognized self-denial as the most essential of basic virtues.

That isn't surprising, for the truth of it must have occurred to every logical mind, in every age, that concerned itself with the study of man's spiritual nature and moral behavior.

It all boils down to this: that people can't think like gods while behaving like swine.

We have a physical nature and a spiritual nature, and we can't develop one while indulging the other. They are too far apart.

"I feel two natures struggling within me," said another great Oriental teacher.

I suppose the basis of the conflict is the fact that man had to have some driving force to make him better himself to preserve his life and his race and develop this Garden of Eden we call the earth. The driving force is desire, and it is the dominant motive in every life. It prompts almost everything we do.

Some desire is stronger than all others, and even those who deny it are motivated by it. It follows logically that the chief virtue consists in overcoming it.

Self-indulgence is the fault and self-denial the virtue. One destroys the other. Satan says, "Do what you please."

Jesus said, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself."

All human qualities and capacities are developed by use and strength is developed only by overcoming opposition. A child learns to walk by overcoming the gravity that would make him fall, and all that he achieves thereafter is a result of overcoming obstacles and developing latent powers by exercising them.

The one sure way to build up the moral strength we call character is by fighting and overcoming desire. Every triumph over it hardens your moral muscle, and every surrender to self-indulgence makes your character more flabby.

It is one rule you can see tested and test for yourself every day. Self-denial is the hard climb up hill; self-indulgence is the easy slide down to the bottom.

Love, DAD.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

A KID WE USED TO KNOW

(Editor Raymond Duncan in the Eatonville Sun)

A little fellow in knee breeches stepped across more than two decades one blustery night this week and before I knew what was happening the flicker of a smile on his face had carried me back to the long ago.

He just bobbed up on a yellowed postcard picture but no one could have made a more real impression. It seemed a long time since I had thought of him and my first reactions were that it was pleasant. That and nothing more. But before I returned to my stories he had inspired me as no one else could have.

The kid was a real newspaperman. I could see him as he walked over town, carrying an armful of papers before he was old enough to go to school. And he hawked his collections, too, because that was necessary to show a profit. When a guy was hard to find he made it a point to learn where the fellow was going to be at some particular time. He didn't give up, either. He stayed right on the job until the last extra was sold. There wasn't much percentage in buying a paper and then going home before somebody bought it. The kid had his pride. He didn't want anyone to subscribe to his paper, or buy one of the accident policies that could go along with it (at a 25c commission for himself) "just to help you out." He figured he was selling a good paper and good insurance and that anyone who patronized him simply was doing good business.

I could see him going down to the bank and getting bright new silver dollars whenever he could, and hurrying home to his big black pocketbook to put them out of circulation.

How the paper was gotten together and printed and delivered was a profound mystery to this kid, whose learning was limited to the primary grades and the schools didn't have as many books than as they do now. But the mystery was one he often contemplated as he went down to meet the "Billy" or "Two Spot" passenger train which brought the bundle of papers. The biggest man on the paper in his eyes was the country circulation manager who dropped by every now and then to see how he was getting along. That man had to be plenty smart to be working for such a big paper and to seem so well informed on everything about it. All the kid knew was that it was pretty swell to be carrying papers that had been gotten out by people who were so smart and worked so fast that they could write about everything that was happening the very day that it did. Maybe some day . . . well, maybe, he could . . . anyway, he could try.

That little fellow of long ago with the knee breeches and a flicker of a smile, who carried papers under his arm and a dream of how wonderful a grown-up newspaperman must be in his heart, covered his route, sold all his extras, made his collections and came home again the other night. And, because he did and I remembered how happy and sincere he was and how much he expected of the men who actually get out newspapers, I knew that the next day, and always, I would be trying to live up to his expectations.

Knox Earned The Greatest Epitaph

Frank Knox is dead, at 70, and it is not at all rhetorical to say that his service to his country hastened that death.

He did a good job as secretary of a Navy which, in one of those twinkling of the eyes, became almost non-existent in the Pacific on the morning of December 7, 1941.

The man traveled around the country whipping up hope, bond sales and enthusiasm. He visited war fronts. He did a magnificent executive job, too, as did his staff. Today we have got a real two-ocean Navy. And it still is growing.

We did that from scratch, too, in a manner of speaking.

And one reason we did it so well was because of Frank Knox.

The Navy people know what a job he did. Had there been a lesser man in the job there would have been trouble; big trouble. And what was Frank Knox stood there and all the little caterwaulers, of which congress has a few, couldn't get room in which to throw any dead cats. They had to hit Frank Knox first and that stopped all but a very few. Knox stopped a few dead ones. And didn't whine.

PUBLIC REBUKE It seems to me that now is the time to say something about the people who always are cynical.

When the President called Frank Knox to be Secretary of the Navy, and Henry L. Stimson to be Secretary of War in those dark days when France had fallen and England looked like a pushover, there was the chorus which shouted "politics."

The two men were picked from the ranks of Republican leaders and a lot of Americans who weren't as good Americans as Knox and Stimson smiled cynically and said "politics."

Well, the answer is that Knox and Stimson didn't think so.

They knew they were called to help their country in a dark day and a dismal period. There were darker days later on, but they stuck, and they did a real job for us and for the country. Their service was a lot more, you may be sure, than any one of the smug persons who smiled and said "politics."

If they had thought it was politics they would never have taken the jobs. If they had discovered later on that it was "politics" they would have quit.

They say that it was a good solid job.

They knew Franklin Roosevelt was trying to show there should be a unity of leadership.

It was obvious he was doing that and obvious, too, that he picked two men from the Republican ranks who were not actually politicians, but administrators and executives. I know Knox was a vice presidential candidate before his appointment, but the statement goes he was not a politician.

GOOD APPOINTMENTS To the shame of some of the political leaders in the Republican party it must be put down that they criticized Knox and Stimson for "betraying" the party.

Well, there are big men and little men.

Roosevelt got not merely good administrators but, by the two appointments, removed the two most important bureaus and departments in the government from partisan politics.

It was good, solid, patriotic thinking on the part of the President.

The two men took the jobs and have worked long and hard at what were the two civilian jobs with more man-killing pressure than any other save that of the presidency itself.

Frank Knox is dead and it is only fair to say that the worry and pressure contributed to his death.

It is a good thing for this country there are men like them and that the tribe which can see nothing but "politics" isn't very important in a crisis.

Frank Knox had what it took to be a real American.

That's the best tribute a man could have.

President's Whereabouts A Secret . . . So Are Willkie's

Has anybody ever dropped out of print as completely as Mr. Willkie? And what, if anything, does it portend? . . . The voluntary censorship of the press never has been more complete than in the present instance of the vacation of President Roosevelt. There hasn't been a whisper, even in newspaper offices, of where he is . . . Jack Sharkey makes a nice speech about his experiences as an overseas entertainer with Lefty Gomez and Fred Corcoran, but Bob Burns, the radio comic, committed the best quip on that type of travel and travail. As guest artist, he had Joe E. Brown, who had made a big tour, and it was noted that Brown had traveled some 50,000 miles entertaining the servicemen. "It's too bad," drawled Burns, "that he ain't a woman. He shore would have made some president a good wife" . . .

Boys back from Italy say we're having plenty of trouble getting any friendship out of the civilians. Evidently they expect us to come in passing out $1,000 bills and three banquets a day. They've mostly turned sour, and have even knifed some of our lads. We've got a lot to learn about how to handle an enemy. That tough Pittsburgh sergeant quoted in a battle flash from Sicily seems to have had the right idea. "Get back there in line," he roared at an ingratiating delegation. "I don't care how many kinfolks you've got in America. There are American dead back down that road. If you love America so, why didn't you do something about saving their lives?" . . .

One tremendous initial invasion difficulty undoubtedly will be wire entanglements and other formidable obstructions hidden in the water. It now develops that that was part of the great trouble at Tarawa. If that wasn't copied from the Germans, the Germans undoubtedly will copy it from the Japs. But our side can be trusted to have been doing some figuring on that item, too. We've made plenty of mistakes on plenty of first times, but we've yet to be stopped by the same thing twice. . . .

WEEKLY POEM Our weekly poem—or is it weekly?—comes from an anonymous Seabee, straight out of the South Pacific. Walter Haeuber Jr., CM 1 c, sent it, but he doesn't say whether or not he's the author. If you're getting weary, sit down somewhere with this.

"So you're tired of working, Mister, and you think you'll rest a bit, you've been working pretty steady, and you're getting sick of it. You think the war is ending, so you're slowing down the pace. That's what you may be thinking, Sir, but that just ain't the case. What would you be thinking if we quit 'cause we're tired, too? We're flesh and blood and human, and we're just as tired as you.

"Did you ever dig a foxhole and climb down deep inside, and wish it went to China, so's you'd have a place to hide, while motored buzzards, packed with guns, were circling overhead, and filled the ground around you with hot, exploding lead? And did you ever dig out, Mister, from the debris and dirt, and feel yourself all over just to see if you were hurt, and find you couldn't move, tho' you weren't hurt at all, and feel so darned relieved that you'd just sit there and bawl?

"Were you ever hungry, Mister—not the kind of food that glutes—but a gnawing, cutting hunger that really bites your guts? It's a homesick hunger, Mister, and it digs around inside, and it's got you in its clutches, and there ain't no place to hide. Were you ever dirty, Mister, not silty collar kind but the oozy, slimy, messy dirt, and the gritty kinds that grind?

"Did you ever mind the heat, Sir—not the kind that makes sweat run—but the kind that drives you crazy, till you even curse the sun? Were you ever weary, Mister, I mean dog tired, you know, when your feet ain't got no feeling and your legs don't want to go? But we keep agoin', Mister, you bet your life we do, and let me tell you, Mister, we expect the same from you." Maybe it's not Shelley, but it says it. . . .

OLLIE REEVES

"Potato liquor being sold in New York."—News item.

It's a pretty knotty problem to discover which is worst . . .
The pangs of gnawing hunger or the cravings of a thirst,
For a man will labor 'til the corns have sprouted on his hands
For some food and drink to satisfy interesting demands.
He will trudgeon like a Trojan just to get a little cash
For a side of sandy spinach or a steaming bowl of hash;
He will eat of foods the cannibal or animal rejects,
Then he throws a slug of "bitters" in to kill the ill effects.
And the "bitters" may be made of corn, or packed with fusel-oil,
If it generates some pep and makes his radiator boil.
Oh, we used to hear the quartets singing . . . "coming through the rye."
But they're practicing another tune to sing us, bye and bye,
As they gather in the evenings to run off another batch
Of the juicy fermentation of the good potato patch
That will lubricate their tonsils as they sing "Sweet Adeline,
It was there I knew you loved me, by the old potato vine."

WESTBROOK PEGLER

The Ward Case

NEW YORK—I wonder how many of us understand the extent of the power which President Roosevelt claimed for himself in ordering the Army to seize the private property of Montgomery Ward and throw out of the place Sewell Avery, the company executive who represented the owners.

By the same process, Mr. Roosevelt could seize and operate through one New Deal agency or another, any newspaper or radio station in the United States after the simple preliminary of instigating a labor dispute through some cooperative union official. He could seize and operate them all.

He claimed his authority for this seizure under the War Labor Disputes Act which was superimposed on the lop-sided Labor Relations Act. The Labor Disputes Act was intended to prevent stoppages in war plants, but is so phrased as to authorize the seizure of any plant or facility equipped for the manufacture or production of any articles or materials which may be used in connection with the war effort, where a labor disturbance occurs. Documents, printed on presses from type set by linotypes, may be and constantly are used in the war effort. Radio communication is used in the war effort. Therefore a newspaper plant and a radio station both are plants and facilities subject to seizure by presidential order and to operation by bureaucrats from Washington in the presence of a labor disturbance which interrupts operation.

Definition

What is a labor disturbance? It is not necessarily a strike of the legitimate employes of the plant or facility. It could consist of a gang of goons patrolling the gates and intimidating the workers, thus interrupting production. It is not necessary that the goons produce any legitimate authority to represent the workers. All they need do is create a labor disturbance and Mr. Roosevelt's power comes into operation. A memorable case, sufficient to justify seizure of a theater, occurred in New York a few years ago. A play which required no instrumental music but did require a few bars of the "Stars and Stripes" and the "Marseillaise" from a phonograph record, was picketed by the local racketeers of Jimmy Petrillo's Musicians' Union. The union wanted the producer to pay a number of theoretical musicians for playing no music. This was a racket, pure and simple. No employes were involved. Actually the money was to have been paid into the racket, not to any individual musicians. The local set pickets in front of the theater and Mrs. Roosevelt, who had tickets for the play, recognized this situation as a labor disturbance, refused to cross the picket line and went elsewhere.

Morale is an article or material used in the war effort and amusement is recognized officially as one of the materials from which morale is built. In such a situation today Mr. Roosevelt could send the Army to seize the theater.

No Quibbling

These are not fantastic or quibbling suppositions. They are thoroughly consistent with the seizure of Montgomery Ward which is not operating under government contracts for the production of war material but is a retail business selling homely domestic articles for civilian use. Naturally some such articles may be used in the war effort. It would be almost impossible to think of any article which could not be so used.

Avery was ordered to extend a union contract which had expired. He refused, insisting that he had no right to assume, without proof, that the union still represented the employes. The union then called a strike, or labor disturbance, and that was Mr. Roosevelt's excuse to call on the Army to seize the property and turn it over to his Department of Commerce for operation.

The effect of this coercive use of the authority of the War Labor Board and the President's war powers has been to compel workers to join unions in vast numbers of cases and, in others, to make them keep up their membership whether they wanted to or not. It has been a great help to the unioneer, the racketeer and the Communist who have thus increased their membership and their loot and established themselves more firmly in power over not only the workers but the property of law-abiding citizens, many of them away at war and many of them with sons at war. And, finally, it has placed private property, in no way involved in the actual war effort, in peril of seizure and the owners in peril of eviction and dispossession at the whim of any group calling itself a union even though there be not the slightest evidence that the authors of the disturbance legitimately represent a single worker in the plant.

DESPISED WEALTH

Or despisest thou the riches of his goodness and forbearance and longsuffering?—Romans 2:4.

There is a wealth not reckoned in the coin of the land. It appeals not at all to some folk, so blinded are they by tangible and glittering values. To Saint Paul more to be desired was the grace of God than gold. He exclaimed in writing to the Romans, "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God!" And again, "Despisest thou the riches of his goodness and forbearance and longsuffering?" Whether we are aware of it or not, the unfathomable love of God is our chief asset. To continually spurn it is to walk in the vale of poverty however regal may be the outer heritage.

For all the indigent of soul, we pray, our Father, and for our own hearts that they may know the fulness of Thy favor.

A Majority Member Quits the House

For 12 years, Congressman Thomas Francis Ford has represented California's fourteenth district. And now he's quitting.

It's not that he's afraid that he can't be re-elected. Or that he's decided to take a better paying job at Lockheed. Nope, it's just that the gentleman has had enough.

The United States House of Representatives, says he, is "the least enlightened and dumbest bunch I ever had anything to do with."

The gentleman didn't mention any names but all week I've been waiting for some solon with a guilty conscience to give out with a "Smile when you say that, bub" rebuttal.

Some of the boys did pass the word around that, yes, there might be some truth in his charges, the situation would be materially improved by his departure.

Be that as it may, it is encouraging to note how quickly the average citizen came to their congressman's rescue when Ford started taking their mentalities in vain.

"The seventy-eighth congress is no more stupid than the last have been," more than one has declared. "It's just that they've had more opportunities to show it."

Personally, I hope the average representative doesn't get his feelings hurt over this declaration that they are "the least enlightened and dumbest bunch I ever had anything to do with."

After all, Ford was never in the senate.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

John Bricker Has Convenient Memory

WASHINGTON—On a tour of the western states, Governor John W. Bricker, of Ohio, recently delivered himself of certain public statements which warrant some scrutiny in judging his qualifications for the high office of president, to which he aspires as one of the leading candidates for the Republican nomination.

In San Francisco earlier in the month he solemnly charged that the Roosevelt administration was responsible for the "disgrace of Pearl Harbor," and declared that if the President had not been asleep at the switch, "we would have been ready."

He even went so far as to say that "the war might not have occurred if we had been ready."

"There was no excuse for getting caught," he affirmed.

Further inferences to be drawn from the Bricker statement are that the omissions of the administration actually drew us into the war and that the leadership of the President since Pearl Harbor has cost us victory.

If we are to judge the Ohio Governor's qualifications for the presidency by loose utterances of this kind, then we may write him off as a rank incompetent, much as the Republicans themselves seem to have done already, judging by the feeble response that has been aroused to his candidacy.

SHORT MEMORY The sum and substance of his remarks indicate that he is either a person of very short memory or else he is taking the public for greater saps than they are to try to perpetrate a fraud of that kind. The public has not forgotten the record of events before Pearl Harbor, even if Governor Bricker has.

Perhaps the most amazing spectacle of the whole business is that a responsible Republican official should be so lacking in foresight as to bring up the question of our pre-Pearl Harbor preparedness, with the invitation it offers for an examination of the sorry performances of the party on the score of national defense.

To go back a few years, it was under the Republican administration of President Harding that a considerable part of the American battleship fleet was scuttled and our Navy relegated to second-rate importance.

And then under two succeeding Republican administrations of Coolidge and Hoover the Navy was so badly neglected that we made no effort to build up to the ratio of the disarmament conference treaty.

Under a Republican administration, also, the late General Billy Mitchell was court-martialed for designing to defend an air force comparable to the dignity and power of the United States.

It was not until President Roosevelt came to the White House that a start was made in bringing the Navy up to the 5-5-3 ratio.

Looking back on the record after all these years, we all know now that Mr. Roosevelt was far ahead of his countrymen in appraising the danger of war events. Denounced as a warmonger by the Republican opposition in congress, it was he who assumed leadership in the movement for recreating our Navy. He even had to circumvent the law in some respects to divert funds for building greatly needed fleet units for our naval establishment.

FORGOTTEN And somehow Governor Bricker seems to have forgotten that the administration sought no less than five times to gain approval of legislation for the fortification of the island of Guam, which was essential to our defense works in the Pacific. Five times congress voted down the proposal, because of someone's fear that it would be an affront to Japan—the same Japs who at that very time were laying the groundwork for the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

There is the little matter in 1939, two years before we were drawn into the war, when Mr. Roosevelt also made his plea for 6,000 planes for the Army, a plea that was criticized as extravagant.

And then, in 1940, when it appeared to far sighted men that the war clouds of Europe were hovering nearer the American continent, he did the unprecedented thing of forcing through congress a peacetime conscription bill—the first of its kind in history. And he did it over the bitter opposition of most of the Republican members of the house and senate.

A year later, when the draft act was about to expire, it is not to be forgotten that the Republican opposition came within one vote of repealing it, at a time—most amazing of all, as we look back—which was only four months before Pearl Harbor.

But for that one-vote margin the country would have been caught at Pearl Harbor with the dissolution of its Army. If the overwhelming majority of Republicans had had their way, December 7, 1941, would have had a far gleamier outlook for us all.

That is the record which Governor Bricker invites for comparison in his inordinate attack on the President. It stamps him guilty of about as simple a piece of nonsense as has ever come from the lips of a responsible official.

License to take liberty with facts is a recognized part of a political campaign, but when a candidate wanders so far afield, not only his motives but his qualifications may be questioned. This alone should be enough to relegate the Bricker candidacy to the dump heap, where it is evidently headed.

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

Spud Joins Fort Mac These are great days for the men in charge of baseball teams at Army posts or Navy bases. Great stars money can't buy are suddenly dumped into a manager's lap.

Captain Cliff Smith, of the Fort McPherson Post team, knows some of the joy of this unexpected blessing for which selective service is responsible.

Overnight, for instance, the Fort Mac Post team has been bolstered by baseball's leading pitcher of 1943, Spurgeon Chandler, the former Yankee from Georgia. A 20-game major league winner is a handsome prize for any team.

Just recently Lawson General hospital's team was strengthened by the addition of the American League's leading hitter, Luke Appling, an Atlanta boy. Luke had been slated to manage the Camp Lee, Va., nine.

Out at the Naval Air Station a most welcome newcomer is Johnny Pesky, Boston Red Sox ace.

And so it goes.

The Army and Navy men in charge of baseball never know when they may come up with one of the best players in the game—without even trying.

Pvt. Davis Reports It's great hearing from the old gang scattered here, there and yonder. Recently Captain Tom Parsons wrote from England and told of the good hunting, both for wildlife and Nazis. Lieutenant Sev. Ulmer [illegible] up with a letter recalling the good old days in the north Georgia mountains, the deer hunts, etc.

Sev, a Yankee, came to be known as the north Georgia hillbilly.

And now Clint Davis, who's on an Army motion picture assignment in the jungles, comes through with a long missive. Clint is still a private, he reports, and he says the decision to travel the newsreel road with the Army has been a wonderful experience.

"For instance," he reports, "here, I have had a chance to study an entirely new type of forest and wildlife. Boa constrictors are an everyday affair, wild parrots are one of the most interesting birds I see. We also have wild boar and deer, both of which, as you well know, always interest me. The deer are very small, about the size of a dog and very beautiful. The worst thing so far has been the ticks and man-eating chiggers. After a day in the bush, I get 25 to 50 big ticks off—and do those babies suck blood.

"I have had a chance to get in one afternoon's fishing here, caught a 15-pound red snapper and some amberjack, but no carp as yet. This morning I was on a cliff overlooking the ocean and saw a huge ray fish do about three leaps, quite a sight. But we don't dare go swimming as the sharks are plentiful here. I counted five at one time in a small bay.

"Guess you think I am on a wildlife survey, but that is about all I can talk about. I am fortunate in getting good assignments and ones that are very interesting, but I'll be the happiest guy in the world when this is all over and I can get back with the old gang and swap this khaki suit for a Forest Service green uniform.

"I sure think, and talk, a lot about the old crowd back home and wonder what they are doing. It sure seems good to hear news about the Atlanta Field Trial Club, the Fly and Bait Casting Club, the Georgia Game and Fish Commission, and our other allied interests. Please say hello to all of the fellows you see—Charlie Elliott, Ray Carter, Abe Moore, Jack Tway, Emmett Harkins. I could go on and on and mention many others I think about and miss. Have had letters from Dr. Clabus Lloyd, Bill Schoen, Horace Gurley and others. Will be glad to hear from any of the fellows as a letter from home means a lot at this outpost.

"CLINT."

P. S.—When I saw Sev Ulmer in New York he was still a private. And since he insists on calling me 'Cookie,' on account of I served such good food at the deer hunts, I'll let you in on something. All the time I was in New York with him he had to admit his wife, Lou, who is an ensign in the WAVES.

The next best thing to pitching two no-hit games in a row, Johnny Vander Meer did, is to pitch a one-hitter and then a no-hit. . . . as Jim Tobin, of the Boston Braves, has done. . . . But here's bad news for you. Tobin has allowed only four hits in the last three games, but he has won only two of the games. . . . The Giants lost, 2 to 1, on three hits. . . . If Luke Sewell's Browns keep their sensational winning streak they may lure two or three thousand customers into the St. Louis park one of these days. Atlanta Rally Thrills 12,037; Deal Homers

By JACK TROY,
Constitution Sports Editor.

Relief Pitcher Dick Mauney and Centerfielder Bill Goodman put a double and single together to give the Crackers a 10th inning, 7 to 6, victory over the Knoxville Smokies before a brilliant gathering of 12,037 opening night supporters last night at Ponce de Leon park.

Mauney doubled and scampered home on Goodman's single, and thus was climaxed an all-night uphill fight by Manager Hazen Cuyler's hustling Cracker club.

The Crackers kept working on the veteran Bill Thomas and finally got him out of the game. They won their uphill struggle at the expense of Godfredsen, who relieved Thomas in the eighth.

THEY HAD IT

The Crackers had lost their extra innings games during exhibition season, not being able to generate a consistent attack. But they had it on the ball when the chips were down last night.

Mauney was the third Cracker pitcher in the game. Pedro Jimenez, just turned 26, was unsettled in his Cracker debut and was removed in the third inning. Ed Wright took over. The Smokies had a three-run lead at this juncture. The Crackers, however, soon had it whittled down, but they never did go ahead until the 10th when they scored the run that counted.

So that made Mauney the winning pitcher, and a well-deserved victory it was. He couldn't have hit a double at a timelier moment for the magnificent crowd. Goodman's winning blow was his fourth hit of the game. He paced the 13-hit attack.

The Smokies were limited to nine hits, including five they got off Jimenez in the early innings. Wright and Mauney were in the groove.

DEAL HOMERS

A terrific two-run homer by Lindsay Deal, the only one of the game, was one of the offensive features.

Manager Cuyler's strategy in inserting pinch hitters in the eighth proved outstanding.

The Crackers and Smokies will have an off day today and will complete the opening series in a single game Sunday. Bespectacled Lewis Carpenter, knuckle ball ace, will face Ivy Paul Andrews, veteran Smokie right-hander.

As the teams settled down in their spectacular see-saw struggle last night, there were interruptions to allow for the shifting of an overflow Negro crowd, one of the largest ever seen at Ponce de Leon. The loyal Negro fans filled their left field stands, overflowed the center field bank and then filled the right field stands. The total attendance was the best opening day figure for the Crackers in recent years.

If it may be taken as a criterion, baseball is faced not with survival, but with grand revival. Very few of the 12,037 fans departed until the Crackers had scored the winning run in the tenth.

SMOKIES SCORE FIRST.

Rebel and Danaher connected for successive doubles to send the Smokies out in front by a run in the second inning.

Jimenez, who didn't seem to have his usual stuff, was relieved after the Smokies scored two more runs in the third. Bell, leading off, reached first on an error, advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Benning's single. Benning moved up on another wild pitch and Dunn's single put him across. Then when Rebel singled, Cuyler removed Jimenez. Wright came in and retired the side as Marsh hit into a double play. Mauldin to Viers to Morris.

Deal cracked a mighty home run and scored Morris, who had singled ahead of him in the Cracker half of the third.

The Smokies scored a fourth run on an error in the fourth. Thomas led off with a single, trotted to second without drawing a throw and scored as Estavez threw Benning's grounder away at first.

And the Crackers came back with their third run. Boger was safe on an error. Wright moved him up with a single and Goodman scored him with a double to center.

CRACKERS TIE IT UP

It was the ball game in the fifth. Mauldin beat out a roller to short. Deal grounded out and Mauldin stopped at second. Howell flied to center, leaving it up to Estavez. The Cuban youngster delivered a single in the clutch and Mauldin sprinted home with the tying run.

A muspLay put the Smokies back in front in the sixth. Hawkins walked with one out. Then Benning flied for the second out, Hawkins stole second, the throw by Boger went into center field and before Goodman could return it, Hawkins went all the way home.

Skipper Lewis belted a triple beyond Howell to lead off the eighth and scored on Bell's single, increasing the Smokies' lead to two runs.

GAME DEADLOCKED

The Crackers, aided by masterful managerial strategy and timely pinhitting, drew back on even terms with the Smokies in their half of the eighth. Howell walked and Garmendia ran for him. Estavez fanned. But Gearhart batted for Viers and walked. Lipscomb batted for Boger and doubled, scoring Garmendia. Cozart batted for Wright and struck out. Goodman then punched one in front of the plate and beat it out. Manager Lewis threw the ball away and Goodman went to second. But Gearhart scored on the hit, not the error.

In the ninth Goodman made a brilliant base-running of Dunn's would-be double and stopped a rally.

Then in the 10th Mauney and Goodman collaborated to thrill 12,037 fans in a smashing finish as the Crackers won the opening game, 7 to 6.

Owls, Purples Stay Unbeaten

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Bill Orgain's Boys' High and J. B. Cash's West Fulton apparently can lick anybody but old Jupe Pluvius—though Tech High might argue the point for no team has licked them yet, either. The Purples and Owls took advantage of old Jupe's absence yesterday to continue their unbeaten ways in the Big Four and N. G. I. C. Leagues, respectively.

The Purples shellacked Marist, 14 to 0, on the Marist diamond as Billy Leach and Lefty Billy Suggs, who hurled the final inning, doled out three hits, while the Owls were hard pressed to cop their seventh straight, but Fulton High's Red Birds finally succumbed, 8 to 6, in 10 innings at Brisbane Park.

In winning their third league game without a loss to match Tech High's similar record, the Purples collected 12 hits with Billy Camp and Joe Cobb garnering three blows in five trips apiece, and Tom Manning smacking two in three efforts. Leach bagged a triple for the game's longest smash. The Purples and Smithies are scheduled to play that oft-rained-out game at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday at Piedmont Park.

Griswell and Plunkett, who did the flinging for West Fulton, limited the Red Birds to five bingles, and Shortstop Morgan, First Baseman Jim Dickey, Third Sacker Barnett and Center Fielder Sparky Bennett backed them up with sensational fielding. Dick McMillin fanned seven of the champs and was the victim of eight errors by his mates, five by Second Sacker Daniel. Ray Bearden fielded brilliantly at shortstop for the losers.

Jim Dickey, with a triple, double and two singles, and Weldon Redd, with two singles, sparked the 12-hit Owl attack.

Scores by innings:

CHICAGO

CHICAGO, April 28.—Hog prices continued even with weeks decline today with seven cents more. A small supply of good grade steers and yearlings sold strong, lower grades dull at weeks decline of 25 to 40 cents. Lambs were steady to 25 cents lower. Colorado top lifting at $14.90.

Although the 9,000 salable hogs on hand here today were about equal to trade requirements, the additional 15,000 state hogs, extended receipts beyond slaughter capacity by about 7,000 head. Packers indicated around at the end of trade. Big packers had an additional 6,000 head billed direct from outside trading points. Price declines were felt at yesterday's levels, but the heat of undertone persisted during the over-supply. Drastic changes effective at some of the midwestern markets, aggregate receipts at the 12 major terminals were 12,000 head in excess of a week ago. The American Meat Institute in a telegram to OPA urging official action in Washington today urged that ration points be either removed from pork products or bonus points be given weekly to encourage civilian consumption of the large supply of pork and sausage now in storage.

The cattle market was on the custom weekend basis with no strictly choice steers or yearlings in the offering, and a meager supply of good grades which squared at $14 for first handlers bulls, at $13.50 to $14 for heifers, and steady at $13.50 down. Vealers were steady at $16 down.

Most good grade western lambs sold fully 25 cents lower, with one load Colorado top going the crop.

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP)—Selective recoveries, for the third successive session, dominated today's stock market.

Specialties exhibited quiet strength from the start, with liquors in front, and closing gains of fractions to a point or so were well distributed. Leader generally, however, seldom got out of a fractional rut and small declines were plentiful.

Rails advanced broadly in today's bond market with late gains ranging from fractions to around 2 points.

Improved in the curb were Brown-Forman Distillers, Humble Oil, Cities Service, Electric Bond & Share and Carrier Corp. Turnover here was 151,085 versus 118,065 the day before.

Your Horoscope

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS.

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—The entire day and evening may be considered favorable for all lines of endeavor. Be active and energetic in promoting all affairs. Between 5:34 p. m. and 7:11 p. m. favors writing, literary efforts, education, politics, wholesale and retail business.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—The early morning hours and until 10:23 a. m. favors general business activities but caution should be observed to avoid sudden decisions, or making radical departures from the usual. After 10:33 a. m. an excellent time to stick to routine.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—The period previous to 1:12 p. m. favors general business, legal consultations and contacting those capable of giving good counsel. The period favors buying and selling. After 1:12 p. m. favors attending to personal matters rather than attempting new or important changes.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—Previous to 12:34 p. m. favors general business activities, dealings with executives and officials and seeking favors. Between 12:34 p. m. and 3:12 discretion should be used around liquids and firearms.

July 23-August 22 (LEO)—The entire day favors new plans and projects. An excellent day to start new plans that have been carefully thought out.

August 23-September 22 (VIRGO)—The morning hours and until 10:55 a. m. are excellent for obtaining cooperation from others. After 10:55 a. m. favors literary efforts, industrial affairs, seeking favors and contacting those in high positions.

September 23-October 22 (LIBRA)—Throughout the entire day and until 7 p. m. is not a favorable time for asking favors, especially the seeking of a raise. Previous to 6:45 p. m. suggests caution in travel. After 7 p. m. favors social and domestic relations.

October 23-November 21 (SCORPIO)—You are likely to meet strong antagonisms during the entire day. An excellent day to control your temper and stick to routine.

November 22-December 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—Before 10:23 a. m. does not favor spiritual pursuits. Between 10:23 a. m. and 2:52 p. m. favors interests pertaining to food and hygiene. After 2:52 p. m. favors giving to routine matters.

December 22-January 19 (CAPRICORN)—The entire day and evening favors financial, domestic social and business interests. The hours between 2:04 p. m. and 7:04 are especially good.

January 20-February 18 (AQUARIUS)—After 9:07 a. m. favors general finances, contacting superiors, dealings with women, but unusual care should be observed around firearms and industrial works.

February 19-March 20 (PISCES)—During the morning hours and until 12:19 noon, those with whom you associate may be unusually understanding and helpful and avenues of endeavor that cater to the artistic and literary side of life should meet with surprising success.

Several Reported Killed In Lebanese Outbreak

LONDON, April 28.—(AP)—A Reuters report from Beirut today said that several persons were killed and a number of others wounded yesterday during a demonstration which developed as crowds lined the streets to cheer newly elected Lebanese deputies arriving in parliament.

The dispatch said that when individuals in the crowd waved a "foreign" flag and broke through a police cordon to advance to the parliament building a Lebanese newspapermen seized the flag and the shooting started.

Dancer Irmgard Erik, Phil Baker Will Wed

HOLLYWOOD, April 28.—(AP)—Phil Baker, of the radio, and Dancer Irmgard Erik will be married May 8 at the home of Colonel and Mrs. Ferris Booth in Beverly Hills, it was announced today.

Actress Constance Moore will be matron of honor and Actor Paul Lukas best man. Baker's young daughter, Margo, will be a flower girl.

Baker previously was married to Vivian Vernon, and Peggy Cartwright. Miss Erik, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Fredericksen, of New York, has not been married.
